Has No Motive For Killing, Says Mills, Summing Up—No Defense Witnesses Because Ward Family Does Not Want Its Secret Made Public.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Walter S. Ward put his case to rest today without offering a defense of any kind for his act.

"The defense rests," said Judge I. Mills, chief of Ward's counsel, as the case opened. He asked if the state's lawyers headed by Attorney General Carl Sherman would allow him to sum up his case immediately. Sherman granted permission.

The final arguments were expected to continue throughout the day. The action of Mills was not unexpected as reports about the court case were entirely content in their belief that the state had failed to establish either a first or second degree charge of murder.

If Ward is found guilty Mills is confident he will get a new trial on appeal. Mrs. Beryl Curtis Ward, wife of the defendant, buried her head in her hands and in scarcely audible sobs cried as Mills in his argument said Ward was a "stalwart, honest, loving father, husband."

Mills made several attempts at eloquence, but in the main his address was devoid of oratory.

Discovering Mrs. Ward in tears, Mills called attention to "the lines of grief which mark her face today." Ralph Ward, brother of the defendant, placed an arm about the sobbing woman, seeking to comfort her.

Mills bitterly attacked Sherman, calling him "Ward to the stand." Great emphasis was laid by Mills on the fact that Ward surrendered himself after the killing of Peters, and no suspicion rested upon him.

He contended, proved the good intent of Ward.

Governor Smith came in for mild criticism because he had appointed Attorney General Carl Sherman as prosecutor in the case.

"Mr. Sherman," said Mills "is only a man if even he does hear the title of attorney general."

Mills said no man in Westchester county had "suffered more unjustly than Walter S. Ward."

Then bit by bit, Mills began to tear into the state's evidence, dissecting it and figuratively throwing it out of court. He accused Special Prosecutor Thomas O'Neill of being unfair.

Ward sat directly behind Mills, facing the jurors.

Mills characterized Mrs. Ward as the little woman God had given the man on trial to share his hour of sorrow.

Mills attacked the state for only sitting on the stand 32 of the 72 witnesses who testified before the grand jury.

He said the inference must be drawn that the testimony of these disowning witnesses would aid Ward.

"The prosecution in the case has hitherto been unfairly conducted," Mills charged.

Mills issued a challenge to Attorney General Sherman to personally sum up the case for the state.

"The state proved for Ward just what Ward intended to prove himself—that Ward never saw Peters until the night of the killing," said Mills.

Bankers' Report Opposes Government Aid To Any Class of Industry and Bonus For Soldiers

Says America Will Suffer If She Stays Out of Reparations Discussions; Scores High Wages and Number of U. S. Employees.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Governmental aid to "any class of industry," the soldier bonus, the increasing number of public employees, soaring wages and America's foreign policy of aloofness, were condemned today in the report of the bankers' committee of the 48th annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

"It is our firm belief," also said the report, "that if we do not recognize and accept our responsibilities in connection with the reparations question which is preventing our Allies and Germany from coming to an agreement, both our foreign and domestic trade will continue to suffer seriously."

The administration was urged to give "official standing" to the American representative on the reparations commission. It was recommended also that the debt funding commission enter negotiations with Great Britain and France in connection with such part of the reparations question as may be included in the Allied indebtedness.

"A policy of complete isolation from European affairs cannot be maintained indefinitely without grave danger to our interests," the report adds.

Concerning governmental aid the report said: "In defiance of economic law, groups, whose service or commodities are temporarily depressed, clamor for government action in their behalf when the only real relief can come from those economic readjustments that lie outside the sphere of proper government action."

"The demand for government purchase of wheat was specifically condemned as 'tending to perpetrate an over supply of wheat.'"

Declaring there are now more than a half million employees of the government alone, the report charges this growth has added enormously to the burden of taxation.

Wages, the report says, "have been raised out of proportion to general prices or cost of living."

In opposing the soldier bonus the report asserts "there is no justification for such an added burden of taxation as the bonus would entail."

Nationalization of industries was attacked by the reports as "a menace to national welfare."

Revision downward of income surtaxes and an immigration law based on selection by a board were also advocated and a plea made that the machinery of agricultural credits be allowed to function "without further tinkering."

On purely banking subjects the report urged uniform rules for savings banks; recommended that the present system of unit banking be adhered to, and suggested changes in the federal reserve law "to lessen the political and increase the economic influence of the federal reserve board."

Concerning governmental aid the report said: "In defiance of economic law, groups, whose service or commodities are temporarily depressed, clamor for government action in their behalf when the only real relief can come from those economic readjustments that lie outside the sphere of proper government action."

BAVARIA ASSENTS; GERMANY QUIET

Von Knilling Willing to Cease Passive Resistance Rather Than Lose Ruhr.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Berlin, Sept. 26.—Germany was believed today to have weathered the worst of the crisis caused by Chancellor Stresemann's unconditional surrender to France in the Ruhr. This success was due mainly to the fact that Prime Minister Von Knilling, or Bavarica, assented to abandonment of passive resistance.

Every one had expected Von Knilling to bolt the conference owing to the hostility existing between Bavarica and Berlin. Contrary to general belief, the Bavarian premier bowed to the inevitable, realizing that to continue resistance against Franco-Belgian occupation was impossible.

A proclamation was issued saying: "The German president and government hereby are solemnly pledged before the German people and the entire world that they will not agree to any settlement which will sever the slightest piece of soil from the German state. Liberty for our German compatriots and freedom of German soil are not subject to bargaining nor negotiations. In order to preserve the life of the nation, and state, we are faced with the bitter necessity of breaking off the combat which has been waged in the Ruhr."

The proclamation was signed by President Ebert and the cabinet. It recited that 150,000 men, women and children had been expelled from the Ruhr by the French. It continued: "For millions of Germans there is no longer any conception of personal liberty. More than 100 of our compatriots have been killed. Hundreds are in prison. The population (of occupied districts) refused to work under foreign bayonets. The whole German nation gives thanks for this faith in this gravest time in our history."

"Last week the Reich spent 3,500,000,000 marks supporting Germans in the Ruhr. This week the amount was doubled. Meanwhile production is paralyzed. Continuation of resistance endangers the existence of our nation. The menace must be averted in the interest of Germany's future as well as that of the Rhine and Ruhr. We will never forget the sufferings of the Ruhrites and their loyalty, their endurance and their sacrifices."

"It remains the foremost task of the government to procure the release of prisoners and the return of those whom the French deported from their homes."

It lies in the hands of the invading powers and their allies to say whether, in recognition of this capitulation, they will give back peace to Germany. If they refuse they will conjure up consequences which are certain to affect the relations of their peoples and ours."

The proclamation ended with an appeal for unity.

Advices from Munich stated that there was dissatisfaction there over the Berlin decision. The Bavarian situation was described as "explosive." The Bavarian Fascists, led by Dr. Hitler, are making threats of trouble.

Essen reports that the communists in the Ruhr are becoming more and more active, agitating against cessation of passive resistance.

During the period of passive resistance and while the German government was pouring money into the Ruhr to support idle workmen, France supported the Reds. Thus, France was withdrawn the moment Berlin decided to surrender.

French military officials are now keeping the sharpest watch over the Red leaders. They have suppressed all the Communist newspapers in the occupied zones.

NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS ARE STILL IMPROVING

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Sept. 26.—The newspapers of Greater New York, crippled for ten days by the outbreak strike of pressmen were "near" normalcy today.

Eighteen and twenty page editions made their appearance today in place of the eight pages that the public has had to be content with since the inauguration of the strike. The heading "combined New York newspapers" is still carried, however, and editorial pages are still missing.

Many press operators from distant cities are reporting in New York for work under the call issued by Major George L. Berry, international president who revoked the charter of the striking local.

U. S. CLOTHING REACHES JAPS; SO DOES TYPHOON

By Telegram to The Freeman. Tokyo, Sept. 26.—A near typhoon last night added to the discomfort of refugees of the Japanese disaster-stricken district. It is reported the American hospital colony at Yokohama was severely damaged.

The arrival of the President Jackson, bearing the first shipment of clothing from America was most timely. The Japanese badly needing warmer clothes. Colonel G. T. Langhorne, aide to General McCoy, declared today that "clothing is immediately needed and the American style is most acceptable because it is warmer."

FUNERAL COLORS MORE CHEERFUL THIS YEAR

By Telegram to The Freeman. Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Pink, blue and gray shades in casket linings and burial gowns are predominant in the exhibition of the Empire State Funeral Supply Salesmen's Club, here today.

The elaborate display of caskets and funeral paraphernalia is being shown in connection with the three convention of the New York State Embalmers' Association. If you must die, die in style, is this year's motto of the undertakers.

The erstwhile sobriety of black and white has passed. Caskets exhibited this year are lined with soft tone hues, pink, blue, champagne color and gray. Dull black shrouds for women have been replaced by regular house dresses of all the colors of the rainbow. Even the temporary rests are covered with bright brocade, and the "slumber robes" correspond.

He stated that it was his duty to disperse them and earnestly pleaded with the members that they do him the courtesy of dispersing quietly and in an orderly manner.

"I have my orders from the adjutant general who has received his instructions from the governor," said Colonel Key. "I hope there will be no trouble, that you will do as I ask," he said firmly.

He read a special military order signed by Adjutant General Baird H. Markham, which "forbade the gathering or assembly of any or all of the members of the legislature at the state house at noon today or at any other time or place within the state during the present period of unrest on the ground that such a gathering or meeting is an unlawful assembly in violation of the provisions of the constitution and laws and calculated to bring about a breach of the peace, provoke riot and institute a reign of anarchy and bloodshed."

There was a dramatic pause as Colonel Key, in robust language, read the military order.

Representative David A. Stovall, of Hugo, who stood facing Colonel Key, asked him the direct question: "Are you commanding us, as members of the legislature, to disperse?"

"I am," responded Colonel Key. "Have you the entire state militia at your command to enforce this order?" asked Representative Wesley Dwyer, legal adviser of the house of representatives.

"I refuse to answer," was the colonel's reply.

There was another pause. "I want all of you to move on," commanded Colonel Key sharply. The troops stood at attention. One of the guardsmen was back of a Browning machine gun.

Immediately there was a shuffle of feet and the "lawless mob" as the governor has termed them, made for the lone elevator that was running. At 12:08 o'clock, eight minutes after the legislators had attempted to meet, the lobby was cleared and shortly after they were out of the building.

Governor Walton had insisted ever since he declared martial law on September 15 that the legislators, whom he termed a "Ku Klux Klan body," would not meet for the avowed purpose of impeaching him.

While the legislators were filing out the building, some of them plainly indignant for they had come miles for just this several groups of girls and state employees stood around, plainly enjoying the legislators' discomfiture.

The legislators got into automobiles and were whisked down Skirvin Hotel.

There they planned to draw papers at once for a petition against Governor Walton, asking that he be enjoined from interfering with the "lawful assembly" of the lower house of the legislature.

Whether or not this petition will be filed in the state supreme court or the United States district court has not yet been determined. Representative W. D. McBea, announced, as the fleet of automobiles left the state capitol.

State Capitol, Oklahoma City, Sept. 26.—At exactly 10:28 a. m. this morning the first two members of the Oklahoma house of representatives arrived at the capitol building and they passed through a ring of steel and applied at the east entrance for admission so they could hold a session of the legislature which has for its purpose the impeachment of Governor J. C. (Iron Jack) Walton.

They were allowed to enter. The first two to arrive were Representative F. M. Boyer of Tulsa county, and Representative Marshall Smith, Osage county.

By virtue of their being members of the house, they were vested with a pass word. This they gave to Colonel W. A. Graves, Oklahoma National Guard, who had been challenging every person who sought to enter. The colonel, after a few minutes, smiled and permitted them to enter. They proceeded at once to the fourth floor, where the house chamber is located, and stood in the rotunda, awaiting arrival of the rest of their colleagues.

The house chamber was guarded by four infantrymen in field uniform and armed with rifles. The legislators upon their arrival, found troops completely encircling the building. Artillery men in khaki with side arms and clubs, were stationed at about twenty yards apart all the way around the capitol. They walked about leisurely in the bright sunshine, nonchalantly swinging their clubs.

WALTON'S SOLDIERS PREVENT MEETING OF OKLA. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Fifty-nine Legislators, a Quorum, Not Interfered With as They Enter Capitol, But Governor's Order is Read Prohibiting Meeting, as They Are Called to Order, and Commanding Officer Asserts His Intention of Enforcing It.

By Telegram to The Freeman. State Capitol, Oklahoma City, Sept. 26.—The Oklahoma house of representatives failed this noon in their attempt to assemble in defiance of Governor J. C. (Iron Jack) Walton, when they tried to meet "under the constitution" as they said, they were dispersed by the military.

Speaker Pro-tem Charles S. Brice of McAlester county, at exactly 2 o'clock, called the house of representatives to assemble in the rotunda of the capitol on the fourth floor just adjacent to the legislative chamber of the house of representatives for determining whether a quorum was present. Colonel W. A. Key, military commander of Oklahoma City, immediately interrupted and requested the legislature to maintain quiet, read the military order directing the legislators be dispersed.

He stated that it was his duty to disperse them and earnestly pleaded with the members that they do him the courtesy of dispersing quietly and in an orderly manner.

"I have my orders from the adjutant general who has received his instructions from the governor," said Colonel Key. "I hope there will be no trouble, that you will do as I ask," he said firmly.

A BOY BURGLAR IS SENT AWAY

Frank Tomczewski, 9 years old, of 67 Ann street, was committed to the Catholic Protectors in Westchester county until discharged by law this morning by Judge Joseph M. Fowler in children's court, when the lad was arraigned before him charged with burglarizing the stores of two downtown merchants.

Nadolewski, 7 years old of 21 East Pierpont street, arrested at the same time, was placed on probation owing to his age. An account of the arrest of the two little boy burglars will be found elsewhere.

"WOLVERINE" SHOESWIPES STRING OF WRECKED CARS.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Quick appliance of brakes prevented what might have been a serious accident this morning when the Wolverine, one of the New York Central's crack passenger trains, coming east, slidswep a wrecked freight car between Tribes Hill and Amsterdam.

First reports had several passengers killed but investigation showed only a few had been slightly cut by glass.

Four cars on a west bound freight train buckled and before they could be removed from the adjoining tracks the Wolverine came speeding along. The engineer on the Wolverine saw the wrecked cars and applied the brakes, but not before his train had crashed into the end of one of the freight cars.

Traffic was delayed for about an hour.

610 PUPILS REGISTER IN SAUGERTIES SCHOOLS.

The registration in the public schools at Saugerties for the present term is as follows: High School, 149; Main street school, 365; and Hill street school, 95; a total of 610 pupils.

Glasco Man Fined $15.

Frederick Hommel of Glasco was given a hearing before Justice Abel Monday afternoon on the charge of reckless driving and colliding with the car of W. P. Lasher of Saugerties. After a number of witnesses were sworn the court imposed a fine of $15, and added a warning that his next appearance would mean a jail sentence.

Bavarian Industrialists Plead.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Munich, Sept. 26.—The Bavarian Industrial Alliance today appealed to the people to remain loyal to the German state and not to foster separatist ideas. The manifesto maintained that reconstruction is impossible unless the basic causes of economic misery are removed, including the inflexible eight hour day.

COWS CAUSED BUS TO UPSET

This morning one of the big Martin Jordan busses, running between New Paltz and Kingston, upset at Rifton. William Mooney, driving the bus, had his hand cut by flying glass, and a little girl, a passenger on the bus, was also cut by glass.

At the time Mr. Mooney was driving through Rifton and in making a turn in the road he found it blocked by several cows which had strayed out onto the highway from a nearby pasture. To avoid hitting the cows Mr. Mooney steered the bus to one side and in doing so it ran into a ditch and turned over. The bus was soon righted and the trip resumed. The little girl, whose name was not ascertained, had her wound sewed up by Dr. John F. Larkin.

FRANCE AWAITS EFFECT OF GERMANY'S ORDER.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Paris, Sept. 26.—France will make no move to change conditions in the Ruhr until the German government's decision to end passive resistance is officially in effect. It was announced by the foreign office today.

Three steps must be taken before France is satisfied, it was stated. They are:

1. Official repeal of Former Chancellor Cuno's passive resistance order.

2. German workers in the Ruhr must return to work.

3. Germany must make fresh reparations proposals to France.

Officials are hopeful that Germany will make proposals which are satisfactory and that a conference of France, Belgium and England and Italy can be arranged next month.

BUY APPLES AT MILL TO GET NATURAL CIDER.

The apple-jackers have succeeded the high-jackers in the Volstead vernacular this season.

According to the latest treasury department rulings affecting manufacture of cider, its preservation must be assured in commerce where the apples are pressed for their owners.

The new system is for the elder customer to buy the apples at the mill and then they are pressed for him at once. Under any other circumstances he may legally get only cider loaded with benzoate of soda to keep it.

CHRISTIENSEN IS INJURED BY AUTO

Robert Christiansen of Ulster Park was taken to the Kingston City Hospital this morning by Dr. Daniel Connelly, suffering with severe cuts about the head. Christiansen was hit by an automobile owned by Sam Goldman of Tannersville. Details of the accident were not ascertained. An X-ray will be taken of the injured man's head to discover if he sustained a fractured skull.

ANTI JEWISH CAMPAIGN ON IN ROMANIA.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Odessa, Russia, Sept. 26.—Jewish massacres have broken out in Roumania and many Roumanian Jews have fled over the border to Kishinev, according to advices received here today.

Anti-Jewish agitation is filling the Roumanian press.

Professor Kouzi, of the University of Jassy, is said to be one of the leaders of the movement. University students threatened death to any Jews appearing on the university grounds.

WEST VIRGINIA SHERIFF FINED FOR CONTEMPT

By Telegram to The Freeman. Wheeling, West Va., Sept. 26.—On a charge of contempt of court, Federal Judge Baker today imposed a sentence of sixty days in jail upon Harry T. Clouse, sheriff of Ohio county.

Counsel for the sheriff secured a twenty day stay.

The contempt citation was issued on a charge that the sheriff had permitted a federal prisoner to leave the local jail to which he had been sentenced.

HEAD ELECTED PRESIDENT OF BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

By Telegram to The Freeman. Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Walter William Head, president of the Omaha National Bank, of Omaha, Neb., today was elected president of the American Bankers' Association, which is holding its 49th annual convention here. ## Y. M. C. A. FUND HALF RAISED

New Amounts to $10,795 From 307 Subscriptions—Workers Warned Against Over-Confidence.

New subscriptions to the Y. M. C. A. fund amounting to $5,542 were reported at the noon meeting of the workers today. The correct amount reported Tuesday was $5,253, making the total amount reported up to noon today $10,795. This is exclusive of any part of the $5,000 donated by President Charles Ramsey on condition that $20,000 be contributed by other persons. A total of 307 subscriptions has been reported.

Over-confidence and a consequent relaxing in the work, is the only thing that will prevent the raising of the $25,000, according to the campaign manager.

After singing "The old Y debt ain't what it used to be," just one week ago, the meeting adjourned until tomorrow, singing "Come out to lunch and join the bunch."

THIEF-PROOF SAFE

Makers of Strongboxes Thwart Modern Cracksmen.

Progress of Metallurgical Science Has Been Most Rapid and the Up-to-Date Burglar Has Difficult Task.

Those who have valuables deposited for safe custody with their bankers do not doubt that they are secure indeed. They do not realize that the continuance of this security involves a never-ending battle of minds between strong-room and safe manufacturers and scientific cracksmen.

Many modern burglars acquired experience of different explosives during the war that has aided them enormously. Before a new method of security has been long in use, some clever criminal will find a way to defeat it, and it is thereby rendered obsolete.

The time has passed since safe-makers produced anything they considered absolutely burglar-proof. Their aim nowadays is to produce a safe or strong room calculated to hold out against attack for a given length of time.

The longest period that a bank safe, filled with money and clients' valuables, can be left without being visited is that from close of business at the end of the week until Monday morning, or something over forty hours.

If it is absolutely impossible to force an entrance into the safe in that time, plus a good margin for safety, the makers' object will have been attained.

The successor to the key lock is the combination keyless lock, which possesses none of the former's disadvantages. The combination can be changed as often as desired, and the lock set so that two or more people, each with his own secret combination, are necessary to operate it.

Time locks are also frequently used, though less in this country than in Great Britain. By means of these a safe can be set to keep shut for a definite period of time, during which even possession of the combination will fail to effect an entrance.

The modern safe door has a slab of manganese steel, at least two inches thick, as a first line of defense. This offers considerable opposition to liquid explosives and the oxy-hydrogen blow-pipe, the principal equipment of the up-to-date burglar. Behind this are successive layers of force-resisting materials, which are calculated to blunt the strongest tools and delay the intruder, if not actually defeat him.

The progress of metallurgical science has been most rapid, and as each new method of attack is revealed it is promptly counteracted and rendered useless.

Those of the public who put their trust in locks, bolts, and bars can rest assured that everything is done by safe-makers to justify their confidence.—London Tit-Bits.

Tailor Bird Is Peculiar.

The tailor bird, an East Indian warbler, is peculiar mainly in his nest making. The actual structure of his ingenious cradle has never been scientifically observed. It is said, although tailor birds are common. He either sews a dead leaf to a living one, or joins two neighboring leaves together so as to form a kind of hanging pouch, which remains attached to the branch by the leaf stalk of one or both leaves. The threads which the tailor bird uses consist generally of twisted vegetable fibers or of actual cotton threads, the bill serving for a needle in puncturing holes in the leaves and in drawing the thread through. Occasionally, if a large enough leaf be found, the nest may be formed by joining together the free edges of the leaf. The lower part of the pouch contains the nest, which is a cup of soft materials, and is entered from above.—Wide World Magazine.

From Newsboy to Parliament.

While his father lay ill and unable to work, little Richard Fairbairn went out and sold newspapers at the Ludgate Hill railroad station. In the city of London. Later he hit upon employment in the distributing office of a London publication. His father recovered health, and became secretary of the Lightermen and Watermen's union, and the youngster assisted his father, taking part in debates when sixteen years old. Improving as he went along, Richard became manager of tramways in London, and after a time at Worcester. Here the townspeople admired his eloquence and his honesty of purpose to such an extent that today the member of parliament for that borough is Richard Fairbairn.

Her Favorite.

"Who is your favorite poet, Miss Gush—Longfellow or Whittier?" asked the professor.

"Oh, neither of them. Mine is much more wonderful. I am quite in love with him, and the strange part of it is that I don't even know his first name. Can you tell me, professor? His name is Anon."—From the Houston Post.

Solved!

"Doctor, can you cure me from snoring?"

"Do you only snore in your sleep?"

"Yes, but I snore so loud that I awaken myself."

"Well, the best thing is to sleep in another room."—Kloda Hans, Copenhagen.

Inventor Saved From Prison.

Thomas Cochran, who took out the first patent for the application of compressed air to tunneling, served in the British navy, later was a political reformer in parliament, speculated heavily in stocks, was convicted of fraud and escaped from prison.

PLANTS OFFER BAIT TO GET HELP FROM ANIMALS

Botanical Expert Describes Strange Power of Locomotion in Some Flora.

The animal kingdom and the plant kingdom have been thought of as separate worlds, but science is finding many connecting bridges. Dr. Fred J. Seaver of the New York Botanical garden staff, in a recent lecture said that it has now become absolutely impossible to separate the lower animals from the lower plants.

We think of the plant as stationary, while the animal is able to move about, but many of the lower plants, such as the diatoms, swim about in the water, while many of the lower animals are fixed, he pointed out.

Going higher in the scale than the humble diatoms, we find plants adopting the fixed habit, said the lecturer, while animals developed to a high degree the power of locomotion. This, together with the fact that animals were largely dependent upon plants for food, had apparently resulted in many modifications of structure on the part of either the animal or the plant, or both.

Since higher plants were for the most part stationary, while animals were motile, it was necessary for the plant, generally speaking, to carry on a defensive warfare to keep from being destroyed by its hungry enemies. Many plants, especially the desert plants, had developed protective armaments of spines or thorns. Just how these devices originated, said Doctor Seaver, it was now difficult to say, but that they served their purpose could not be denied.

Again, since higher plants were unable to move about, many ingenious arrangements had been perfected for making use of the locomotory powers of animals for performing some of the necessary functions of plants. The plants used the locomotory powers of insects and other animals mainly in the pollination of their flowers and for the distribution of their seeds. The appeal was usually made to the animal's desire for food, which was offered as bait. In securing the desired food, the animal was made to serve the plant. Brilliantly colored flowers acted as signals, while the nectar which they contained was offered as recompense for the assistance rendered.

TO CRAWL 100 MILES ON ONE KNEE AND EAT DOG

Dr. J. T. House, professor of literature at the Nebraska State Normal school, who is to "go into the primal" with a 100-mile crawl on his hands and one knee—the other being so jied up that he cannot use it. While on the trip he will live on berries, roots, field mice, and "etc"—the "etc" to include a dog which the professor will kill, cook in its own skin, and then eat. There is no net connected—Professor House merely wants to prove he can duplicate the feat of Hugh Glass, a famous old trapper who was forced to crawl 100 miles on one knee, after his leg had been broken in a fight with a grizzly bear and he had been left for dead.

PENSIONS GIVEN TO ACTORS

Many in Berlin Supplied With Unemployment Dole.

Several dozen well-known actors and actresses, who accepted jobs with a summer stock company operating the Deutsches theater in Berlin, are now drawing unemployment pensions, as the venture failed and there is no prospect of a new management taking it over.

Under the circumstances these are lucky in being able to qualify for municipal unemployment doles, as numerous colleagues, unable to find summer employment because of the surplus of musical shows and reviews now holding Berlin stages, were forced to engage in various pursuits pending the opening of the fall season.

Glenwood

Makes Cooking Easy

"I never knew I was such a good cook"

AND I'll have to give most of the credit to our new Glenwood range, it certainly has made a difference in my cooking. I'm spending less time in the kitchen, too."

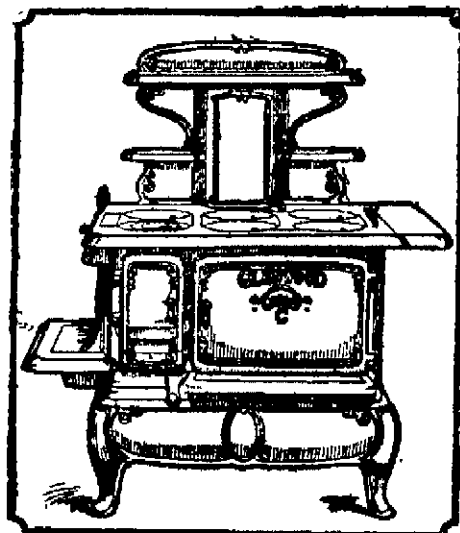

"It's a relief to have a range that doesn't need to be coaxed to cook."

A Glenwood comes as near to making cooking a pleasure as any range can. It does make cooking easy, which is really more important.

The Model "C" Glenwood is illustrated here.

Its big square oven bakes food exactly right—top, bottom and clear through. The balanced baking damper and the Glenwood Patent Indicator take care of that—you can't make a mistake.

Like every Glenwood, the Model "C" is built for a lifetime of service. It will give you a new idea of how easy it is to be a good cook.

Even Gypsies Changing.
To defend her race from the charge that they are "ugly, dirty, half idiotic," Fenella Smith, a gypsy princess, has written the first genuine Romany letter to appear in the English newspapers. She is a gifted woman, deeply versed in Romany gypsy lore, and claiming descent from the Petulengo family, mentioned in Borrow's books, which to gypsies is what Norman blood is to the aristocratic English families. "Princess" Smith contends that real gypsies are handsome, clean, as clever as their critics, and gives evidence that the mysterious vagabond race is changing its traditional habits under the influence of the modern thirst for knowledge. Nowadays in gypsy camps here, her letter continues, it is not unusual to find the mother squatting beside her caravan teaching the swarthy brood of children to read and write.

Palmettos Are Wise.
The palms are wise. They toll and spin and weave cloth that is well-nigh as fireproof as asbestos, and wrap themselves in it. Palmettos start up into sun and air, then, says Nature Magazine, as if they "smelled danger," they poke their noses—their pushing points of growth—back into the soil and send their roots on for twenty feet or more underground shooting up here and there clumps of glossy fingered leaves, with stems wrapped safely in their homemade vegetable asbestos. They have pines for neighbors and fires are frequent. Flames sweep the ground, climb in pillars of fire to the top of the pine. They leave the ground black and bare. But in a few weeks all is green again with the palms, whose underground roots and protected buds have suffered no harm.

Unhappy Blunder.
The Homiletic Review says: "At the close of the forenoon session of a ministerial conference, in announcing the opening subject for the afternoon session the presiding officer stated that Elder H— would present a paper on 'The Devil,' and added: 'Please be prompt in attendance, for Brother H— has a carefully prepared paper, and is full of his subject.' Imagine his chagrin when an uproar of laughter reminded him of the unhappy witicism he had blundered into."

"Santos" Coffee From Sao Paulo. It is against the law now to label "Java" coffee that does not come from Java or Sumatra. Real Mocha is grown in Arabia, and after the coffee became well known and very popular some unscrupulous dealers applied this name to coffee from other countries. Coffees frequently take their names from the ports from which they are shipped. The most widely used variety in this country is called "Santos," after a port of Sao Paulo, the great coffee-producing state of Brazil.

Volcanoes in United States. While there are no active volcanoes in this country, there are a number of extinct or dormant volcanoes in the West. These include the San Francisco mountains of Arizona, Mt. Taylor in New Mexico, Mt. Shasta in California and the following peaks in the Cascade mountains: Mt. Mazama, Union, Scott, Three Sisters, Jefferson, Hood, Adams, St. Helens, Rainier and Baker. The Spanish peaks of Colorado are also the remains of ancient volcanoes. Most of these mountains have visible craters on their summits or on their sides.

Origin of the Dollar. The dollar was introduced into America by the West India trade before the Revolution. The coinage act of the 2nd of April, 1792, legalized it and established it as a unit of American currency. The inconvenience of the English system of money led Congress in 1781 to instruct Robert Morris to devise a system of national coinage. His suggestions were not adopted, but those proposed by Jefferson were approved. He proposed the dollar as a unit to be equivalent to one hundred cents.

Care of Your Hair in Warm Weather

Wind, Sun, Salt Water and Dust Are Injurious in Summer Time.

"Watch out for the mid-summer months. Of the twelve months of the year these are the hardest on the hair," says a prominent hair specialist.

"Wind, sun and salt water, to say nothing of the dust and dirt, are so injurious to the scalp that the fall of the year is apt also to mean the fall of the hair."

Cleanliness the specialist urges as the first essential.

"Most of us go through a daily ritual of baths and ceremony of creams, but stop our operations at the hairline," she states.

"Get over the idea that your hair brush is a dressing-table accessory. When you are not using it, keep it in a drawer, hidden from dust, and keep it clean by frequent washings."

"And let the daily brushing become a part of your beauty routine."

"As you brush, use an upward movement which loosens the scalp and stimulates the circulation. See that at least half your strokes really get to the scalp."

"Two or three times a week give yourself a treatment with some good tonic suited to your scalp. Apply it on a bit of absorbent cotton and rub it in well. This is cleansing as well as nourishing."

Massage is beneficial to the scalp only when properly applied, she maintains. Here is her method:

"Begin at the nape of the neck, press your thumbs well into the structure at the base of the skull and work carefully around the neck to the ears. The scalp should be lifted and pressed and kneaded in circular sweeps of the finger tips and palms until a pale pink hue assures the restoration of lively circulation."

"Don't shampoo your hair too often, for if you have a tendency toward oily hair this will only aggravate the condition. Do not try to remove the oil by powders or dry shampoos which clog the pores and make matters worse."

"After any illness, fever or operation, or after any periods of overwork and strain, the scalp is always debilitated and should have extra care."

"Salt water is most injurious. After your swim be sure to dry your hair thoroughly in the sunlight, if possible. After motoring or being exposed to dust, brush your hair carefully and remove as much dust as you can with a soft linen towel."

"The hair requires much more care in summer than in winter. But if cared for in summer, it is bound to thrive and have nothing to do but grow and become luxurious during the cooler seasons."

Amber Beads and Band Bracelets in Fashion

Amber beads, imported from China, with band bracelets to match, form an attractive item for morning or afternoon wear.

Furniture Values in Three Special Groups

Into three general groups or divisions can the value of furniture be divided, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. First is cost and carriage; second, utility or service; third, the elements of beauty or attractiveness.

The first two groups are tangible things and can be figured out by rule and formulae, but the elements of beauty, which comprise the third division, are things complex and often intangible.

To obtain the best results in furnishing your home, inspect the displays in four home town dealer's stores. Note the lines, bulk and color. What pleases you most will be the most acceptable pieces of furniture for your home, provided you have also considered the color of the surroundings into which you will place that furniture. And your dealer will easily assist and guide you in solving that question if you only will ask his help.

Will He? The next generation will be that of the eminent village. The son of the farmer will no longer be dazzled and destroyed by the fires of the metropolis. He will travel, but only for what he can bring back.—Vachel Lindsay.

HYLAN TO GO HOME IN 2 WEEKS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 26.—With the swelling in his right leg almost gone, Mayor John F. Hylan, all here for the last month with double pneumonia, now has hopes of returning to his Brooklyn home within two weeks.

The mayor, however, is troubled some with pleurisy but the patches of pneumonia on his lungs have virtually disappeared. His appetite is good and he often jokes with the doctors about the swelling in his right leg.

A bulletin issued shortly before noon by Doctors George F. and Carl R. Comstock read:

"The condition of Mayor Hylan continues to be satisfactory. The swelling of his right leg has practically disappeared. The pleuritic process has cleared except for a few remaining evidences of the pleurisy of which Mr. Hylan has been suffering."

The bulletin made no mention of the mayor's temperature, pulse and respiration but it was said at the home of his son-in-law, John F. Sinnott, that they were normal.

BATTERY 1 TO UNCOVER BALL TALENT THURSDAY

Editor Freeman:

The indoor baseball season at the state armory is on and I notice that the members of Battery E have organized into teams bearing such delightful names as "Discipline Nine," "Cock and Alm Nine" and "Trigger Squeeze Nine." I have watched both the members of Battery E and Battery I in action and although the members of Battery I have not adopted such appropriate names as the members of the other battery, still they have some real ball players.

Next Thursday at 9 o'clock the question of which battery is superior at indoor baseball will be decided when Battery E and Battery I meet. The public is invited to attend these games.

There is much good natured rivalry between both batteries and I can't understand why more of the young men of the city don't come in and help build up the local batteries. ONE INTERESTED IN BUILDING UP THE COMPANY.

To Incubate Eggs. Eggs were first incubated in England under a cotton covering warmed by a charcoal fire.

Society Notes

Federation Meeting Tomorrow.

The first fall meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs will be held tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock in the committee room at the Y. W. C. A., 14 Henry street.

Surprise Party.

Mrs. Elizabeth Schaefer was very agreeably surprised Monday evening at her home, 73 O'Neil street, when about 20 of her friends gathered in honor of her birthday. Great entertainment was found "listening in" to the different stations on the radio, also selections on the "Sonora." At a late hour a bountiful luncheon was served and the guests departed for their homes.

Richter-Smith.

Mrs. John S. Smith of 60 East Chester street announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen, to Leroy Richter, on Tuesday, September 25, at noon, by the Rev. John J. Smith, a cousin of the bride, at Rhinebeck, N. Y. The attendants were Mrs. James J. Montgomery, sister of the bride, and Oscar Richter, Jr., brother of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Richter will be at home on October 1 at 60 East Chester street.

Kijkult Party a Birthday Party.

Tuesday evening the girls of the Summer Sociability Club of the Y. W. C. A. and their friends had a picnic supper at the Kijkult, and in addition to a wonderfully beautiful sunset watched from that incomparable "lookout," the event was of unusual moment. It was "Billy" Herdman's birthday, and there was a perfectly "scrumptious" birthday cake and all sorts of "gifts" for the popular little assistant at the Y. W. C. A. And then there was the usual singing and games, but the thing which will last longest in the memory of all present was "Billy" Herdman's birthday party at sunset on the Kijkult.

25th Wedding Anniversary.

Friday evening, September 21, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Howard of 22 Snyder avenue, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The home was beautifully decorated with cut flowers. A very enjoyable evening was spent. At midnight a bountiful supper was served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Howard and children, Mr. and Mrs. John Dermody and daughter, Winifred, L. L. Wanda, Mrs. John Grimm and Effie Grimm and Albert Grimm, Mrs. E. Waterman. Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Howard were presented with some beautiful gifts. The guests left at an early hour, wishing Mr. and Mrs.

Howard many more years of happy married life.

Henry Sullivan to be Married.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Henry Sullivan of Jersey City, son of Mrs. Della Sullivan of No. 29 Rogers street, this city, to Miss Nellie Sheehan of Jersey City, the marriage to take place October 25. In addition to many personal friends in this city with whom he is extremely popular, Mr. Sullivan has thousands of friends and well wishers, who never saw him in person, among readers of The Freeman who recall the letters written by him while in the army in France during the war the letters from "The Sullivan twins," Henry and James J. to their mother and printed in The Freeman cheered the heart of many a mother whose son was in the A. E. F.

Twentieth Century Club.

The Twentieth Century Club set the ball rolling for club activities in this city this fall by holding a meeting on Monday. The new president, Mrs. Morris Safford, entertained the club at her home on Trampus avenue, serving delicious refreshments at the close of the afternoon's program. The Twentieth Century Club is making a study of "China" this year, and the program for the day began with a map talk on China given by Mrs. Charles Lewis. It was followed by a reading, "The Great Wall and Its Legend," given by Mrs. Broadhead. This year this club will have as its roll call a discussion of current events, the subject to be announced the week before the discussion will take place, thus allowing time for preparation. At the next meeting, which will be held on October 8th, at the home of Mrs. Lewis on Luderman avenue, the roll call will be a discussion on "Science and Discovery." The afternoon closed with a pleasant social hour.

Olympian Club.

The Olympian Club held its regular meeting Monday evening at the home of Miss Winifred Sullivan on Walnut street. After the regular business routine the club enjoyed the program. The paper for the evening was the English short story and Mrs. A. L. Berwin's sketch of "Galworthy" was most interesting. "The Little Man," a short story by Galworthy, makes delightful reading and possesses many fine points. Roll call was answered by vacation memories. Mrs. Charles Keefe spent her vacation at Cape Cod and told many interesting things about that section. The Misses McCullough have visited friends in the home town of President Coolidge, gave a most unique account of their trip through Virginia, visiting at "Edgemont," Jefferson's first home and at "Monticello," his last home. This is "Monticello year" and Virginia is enthusiastic over Thomas Jefferson.

Miss Jennie Rely responded by telling of her California trip. Her description of their trip down a canyon was very vivid and Yellowstone Park proved so interesting that the club has requested Miss Rely to continue at the next meeting.

Mahoney-Morris.

A very pretty church wedding was solemnized this morning at 11 o'clock at St. Joseph's Church when Miss Carrie G. Morris, daughter of Mrs. C. N. Morris of No. 124 Cedar street, became the bride of William H. Mahoney of 36 Shufeldt street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph G. Cushman, pastor of the church. The bride looked charming in blue georgette and a hat to match. She was attended by Miss Carrie Bruck as bridesmaid who was gown in brown canton crepe with hat to match. The best man was Edward Mahoney, a brother of the groom. During the ceremony Frank Fitzgerald, of Jersey City, sang the "Ave Maria." Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride on Cedar street which was largely attended by the many friends and relatives of the happy couple. The bride was the recipient of a large number of valuable and artistic gifts. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney left on a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C., and upon their return will reside at No. 124 Cedar street. Both bride and groom are popular young folks and have the well wishes of a host of friends. The groom is employed on the West Shore railroad.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES.

One of the cleanest, strongest and speediest stories of the screen year, has turned up at Keeney's for tonight only, "Skid Proof." Charles Jones' latest. The Transcontinental Auto Race, for the supremacy of the world, is the pivot of the story. The scenes begin with the shot which starts the competing auto-racers.

Several celebrities are to be the guests of the patrons of the Kingston Opera House commencing Friday night.

Those in question are none other than "The Gumps," Andy, Min, his wife, uncle Bim and little Chester. They are the creations of the Gump Smith, whose cartoons of the whole family have made the whole nation laugh. For an appropriate setting to narrate the adventures and escapades of this distinguished group of real Americans a two-act farce comedy with music, entitled

"The Gumps" has been provided.

"The Covered Wagon," Emerson Hough's great story of the Oregon Trail which James Cruze pictured for Paramount, continues to attract enthusiastic audiences at the Kingston Opera House where it plays for the last time tonight. "The Covered Wagon" success is the outstanding news of summer theatricals, for somewhere around 20,000 people here see it every week, and the local run is being triplicated by those in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles. The big photoplay combines almost every sort of Wild West adventure of the early pioneering days with a romantic love story and a brand of native American humor that is new to the screen. A decided artistic addition to the production is the score arranged by Hugo Treisfeldt and played by a selected orchestra of 16 musicians.

Strongheart in "Brawn of the North" and "Peg on the Move" are the pictures offered today at The Auditorium.

SARAZEN AND CAMPBELL PLAY RAGGED GOLF

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pelham Country Club, New York, Sept. 26.—The third round in the professional golfers' association at the Pelham Country Club today produced closer competition than on the previous days.

Ray Derry, of Philadelphia, led Dobby Cruikshank of New Jersey by three.

Willie MacFarland, New York, was six up in his game with Jack Stait, of Hartford.

Gene Sarazen was paired with A. Campbell, Walter Hagen with Johnny Golden, Joe Kirkwood with Johnny Farrell and Jim Barnes with Cyril Walker.

Sarazen led Campbell 2 up at the 15th. Sarazen and Campbell played ragged golf, having a medal score of 50 and Campbell taking 52.

Walter Hagen led Johnny Golden of Tuxedo by four holes at the 15th. Hagen had a medal score of 36-36-72, with a six at the elbow hole, the 13th and a four at the short tenth.

Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City, led Freddy McLeod, Washington, two holes at the 15th.

Paying the Chinese Doctor.

The Chinese pay their doctors to keep them well. Much as big business corporations pay lawyers a retainer fee, the Chinese pay doctors to prevent sickness in the family. If a Chinese patient becomes ill, the payment of the doctor stops until the patient recovers, when it is resumed. A Chinese doctor visits a family at certain intervals, and by examination prevents disease instead of curing it.

SURVEYING THE SURVEYORS.

Several months have elapsed since Kingston has had a survey of any kind and it is about time another surveyor came along in search of easy marks and a job. The Freeman does not pretend to be able to recall or review all of the surveys that Kingston has had, but it may be well to cite a few of them.

Several years ago the state surveyed the shade tree situation in Kingston and expert surveyors wrote a small book about it, telling just how to spend several thousands of dollars a year in making Kingston "a city beautiful" by cutting down most of the existing shade trees and planting others. After the city had hired a self-confessed "expert" to go around defacing trees by slicing off part of their bark as an indication that they were marked for destruction, the matter languished and is now almost forgotten. New bark has grown over the slashes and most of the conde red trees are still alive and growing.

Four or five years ago the state surveyed the milk situation in Kingston, spurred thereto by a desire on the part of the Chamber of Commerce to find out if the cost of distribution was too great. The survey showed that it was, but the cost has not been decreased, although through constant efforts by the local health officials the quality has greatly improved. The survey was filed in the records of the city and the Chamber of Commerce, but it is doubtful if anyone knows where to find it or if anyone wants to find it.

Then there was a school survey undertaken by the state to determine what additional courses of study should be put on in the public schools, there having been many long and agonizing shrieks from a few persons who demanded that the school courses be broadened. The survey showed that there were few if any pupils who would take the proposed new courses, so this survey was filed away in the records and forgotten. Inasmuch as it abated the demands for something that those for whom the demands were made did not want, this survey was to some degree a success.

The Rondout Creek bridge is an accomplished fact, but the cost of it was vastly increased by the number of surveys that were made for bridges that nobody ever had the slightest intention of building, aggregating many times the cost of the survey on which was based the plans according to which the bridge was built.

A year ago the first Kingston Exposition was given for the purpose of raising money to pay for a survey of the city. There was not enough money made to pay for the survey, so $1,300 was taken from the funds of the Chamber of Commerce and the surveyors began work. Their production was printed in The Freeman and a few persons read it but nothing else seems to have happened. It is on file in the office of the Chamber of Commerce. As a by-product of this survey, Kingston merchants learned the value of an exhibition of merchandise and the exposition was repeated this year, without the aid of surveys or highly paid outside aid, drawing a larger attendance in six days than it did last year in nine days.

Surveys in Kingston seem to be a fine thing for surveyors who are looking for a job.

LEAKY PHILIPPINE BANK.

Probably American advocates of independence for the Philippines have done some thinking since a certain bit of news arrived from Manila. One would naturally suppose that a Governor General's message to the Philippine legislature would be given publicity whether the natives in control of that legislature liked it or not, but it seems that a message from Governor General Wood some time ago was suppressed and after delay he found it necessary to make it public by other means. According to the account, it was suppressed by natives in control of the legislature because it disclosed the condition of the Philippine National Bank, showing that this bank in six years has sunk all of the capital, of which the Government supplied 98 per cent, and two-thirds of the Government deposits, an aggregate loss of about $37,000,000. It is not stated whether this vast sum was lost through bad management and wasteful methods or whether certain Filipinos were too keenly interested in personal provision for future rainy days.

What American friends of the independence of the Philippines are given to think about if they accept the facts as stated—is whether Filipinos so lacking in financial capacity (or probably have the necessary capacity for self-government under an independent flag.

Can You Answer These Questions?
1. Is it really healthier to have plants and trees around? Why?
2. Do cypresses have more than one litter a year?
3. Did you ever hear of anyone losing pigeons from the attacks of screech owls?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Can oysters be fed artificially, and if so, how?

We suppose you mean can they be induced to take some food not natural to them. So far as we know, no. There is a belief oysters will feed and fatten on corn meal, but they do not take it. The feeding apparatus is too elaborate to describe here, but so operates as to reject too-abundant solid matter when such is swept toward the mouth. Meat or any similar solid would not be accepted even if it got as far as the oyster's mouth.

2. How does a crocodile swim?

Largely by its tail, which serves as a powerful limb. The tail is flattened noticeably toward its outer end, being wider from top to bottom than from side to side. It acts as a propeller, and is more active than the feet in moving through the water.

3. I have hatched a baby bluebird under a canary. The canary tries to feed it but it acts as though not satisfied. What should I feed it?

Young birds are fed on insect diet (except such as feed by regurgitation, like pigeons, hummers, etc.) and you should provide flies, millers, cut worms, and angle worms. Crush the insects into fragments small enough for the baby to swallow easily. It will eat voraciously, something like its own weight daily. Mash hard-boiled yolk of egg can be used when almost grown.

HISTORIES OF LEADERS OF OKLAHOMA FACTIONS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 26.—Here are character sketches of the two principal figures in Oklahoma's "battle of capitol hill."

William Dalton McBea, representative from Stephens county, an ex-cowboy, spent his early manhood breaking "buckin' horses" on the Mule Shoe Ranch in Texas. Grew up hardy, but turned to a milder occupation, that of law, and today resembles a typical country school teacher. He is rather thin, mild-mannered and smiles kindly over horn rimmed glasses. He was born in Austin, Texas, and is 47 years old. He is married, father of five children, four boys and one girl. Was at one time state senator in New Mexico, now representative from Stephens county, Oklahoma, where he has lived and practiced law since 1896.

John Callaway Walton, fifth governor of Oklahoma: An ex-ice-making engineer and salesman of electrical appliances; six footer and weighs more than 200 pounds. Dynamic in manner. Has "personality of rough and ready sort." Well liked by the so-called common people. Born on farm near Indianapolis, Ind., 42 years ago. Came to Oklahoma in 1904. Went into business, then politics. Was elected mayor of Oklahoma City, then governor of the state. Entire political career picturesque and stormy. In June, 1923, he instituted a vigorous campaign against the Ku Klux Klan which led up to the present situation.

M'KAY RESIGNS NEWBURGH POST

To Give Up Management of City of Newburgh December 31 to Devote Attention to Business.

The Newburgh News of September 25, says:

On the insistent demand of City Manager McKay his resignation of that office was accepted by the council last night, to become effective December 31 next. The motion was made by Councilman Fowler, at Mayor McKay's direct request, and the vote was unanimous.

It was after announcing the completion of a tentative budget for 1924, and that a conference of the council thereon will be called for some day this week preparatory to its formal submission next Monday, that the manager made known his final determination.

"This is absolutely and positively the last municipal budget which the present city manager will make out," he said. "For the last two years I have been trying to resign, and people are beginning to think I don't mean what I say. I must make a choice between attending to the city manager's job or attending to my own business. I have no quarrel with any city official. My own business pays better and is more agreeable. Therefore I now ask that Mr. Fowler now move that the resignation I offer be accepted, to take effect December 31, 1923, or earlier if possible."

Mr. Fowler made the motion, which was seconded by Mr. Miller, and adopted.

At a moment later Mayor Leonard sprung a surprise by announcing his withdrawal from all connection with the conference to be held October 3 with a view to effecting a settlement of the certain proceedings on assessments for the years 1916 to 1920, inclusive. The mayor bases his withdrawal on the fact that City Councilman James Miller, who made the assessments which are now the subject of litigation, was renominated for councilman in the Republican primary last week by the largest majority on the ticket. The mayor interpreted this as an endorsement by the people of Mr. Miller's course as city assessor, and added: "If it were possible for me to effect a compromise of the central suit, there would go out propaganda that would reflect on my judgment."

ITALIANS SAY THEY GET PARTIAL SATISFACTION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 26.—The inter-allied council of ambassadors has decided that Greece was partially responsible for the assassination of General Tellini and four colleagues upon Greek soil and that Italy is entitled to 20,000,000 lire damages. It was said this afternoon by high Italian authorities. The commission which investigated the killings reported Greece blameless.

It is understood that the English and French diplomats supported the Italian viewpoint that Greece's official search for the assassins was not conducted with sufficient vigor to be successful. It was claimed that the guilty persons were not arrested. The foreign office stated that the ambassadors' decision was unanimous and that it "satisfied everybody concerned."

CHARGE OFFICIALS ARE LUKEWARM TOWARD CANALS

Syracuse, Sept. 26.—Charges that they were "slightful" in their attitude upon canal maintenance were hurled at the heads of public officials today at the opening session of the New York State Barge Canal Convention here.

Vice-Chairman George Clinton of Buffalo, who presided, criticized the state's officialdom and sounded a call to arms for laymen favoring the larger use of canals as highways of commerce to cooperate against the foe of the waterways system. The convention faces no regular program.

RUHR SITUATION TROUBLES BRITAIN

Her Cabinet is Divided as to Whether She Should Assent to Indefinite French Occupation.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Sept. 26.—With Premier Stanley Baldwin presiding, the cabinet met today to discuss Germany's unconditional surrender to France on the Ruhr issue. The reparations statement which the premier will make to the forthcoming British imperial conference was discussed in detail.

The conferences of the overseas premiers will open next Monday.

It was understood Baldwin informed the cabinet that Premier Poincare assured him that France did not intend to remain in the Ruhr permanently. The French premier said, however, that France would remain in the Ruhr until Germany paid the war indemnity, no matter how long that took.

The cabinet considered whether Great Britain could accept such a policy, thus standing side by side with France upon the reparations issue. Such a course was opposed by some members who maintained it would be tantamount to permanent occupation.

Finally, the members decided not to make a final decision today, but to await an official communication from Germany and also events in the Ruhr.

Premier Baldwin made a detailed report upon the conversations he held with Premier Poincare and President Millerand, in France.

The Daily Express, in commenting upon the situation, said that, as the British note of August 11 alleged that French occupation of the Ruhr is illegal, France may not share any of the proceeds of occupation with British. The editorial said in part: "Statesmen who lead people into costly errors ought to have the grace at least to move to other posts of usefulness. If we are to have money out of the Ruhr the ministry must be reorganized."

WEST YEARN'S FOR THIRD PARTY

Only Nomination by Present Big Parties of "Outstanding Americans" Will Avert It, Declares Senator Wheeler.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 26.—The creation of a third party, led by an "outstanding American," would throw the 1924 presidential election into the hands of Congress. Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, told International News Service today.

Making his first visit to the capital since his election last fall, Wheeler declared the west was "tired of both old parties" and would demand progressive candidates in 1924 under threat of bolting to a third ticket. If the third party is formed, under progressive leadership against conservative candidates in the old parties, Wheeler said, the west would swing to its support.

The Montana senator saw a "deadlocked election" under such circumstances with the west supporting the third party, the south going Democratic and the north and northeast voting Republican. The president then would be named by Congress. He did not concede the third party a chance of winning the election.

"The outstanding Americans" who could lead a third party into a dead heat with its older rivals, Wheeler added, were Henry Ford, Senator R. M. LaFollette and Senator Borah, in the order named.

"The west wants individuals and not party policies," Wheeler said. "It favors Ford for president on either ticket because the farmers feel that the man who gives them cheaper automobiles than any one else, who can buy a railroad and reduce rates, would put practical business men at the head of our government instead of politicians. The west is sick of political jobbery and the farmers feel they were more or less jobbed by the politicians of both old parties."

"The people who voted for Magnus Johnson in Minnesota, on the Farmer Labor ticket would have voted for him on the Republican, Democrat or Socialist ticket. Party lines meant nothing. It is the same thing today in a dozen other western states. Unless the Democrats name an outstanding progressive, for the Republicans seem unlikely to, the west will get a third party."

"If a strong outstanding American, progressive in policy, is named by a third party the 1924 presidential election will be thrown into Congress. The west, voting for the third ticket, would dead lock the election."

"Henry Ford would be the strongest candidate for such a party but Senator LaFollette also could be very strong. Senator Borah would carry the west too."

"Ford is the strongest man in the whole west. He probably can carry every state west of the Mississippi if nominated by one of the older parties. There isn't even any question about the coast states, including California."

"LaFollette is stronger than the east ever dreams. He can carry Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, probably South Dakota, possibly Montana, and Idaho and Washington. He can swing a great influence on the 1924 result."

"It is doubtful whether a third party could win because the south will go Democratic as usual and the Republican party will retain its hold on the east and New England."

Wheeler declared the "progressive sentiment" in the west was caused by a feeling among the farmers that the government has discriminated against them in stabilizing legislation. He said farmers felt the government had stabilized the price of manufactured products through the

TURKEY HAS MINOR REVOLT

Constantinople, Sept. 26.—A revolutionary outbreak took place in Turkey today. A former deputy in the national assembly at Angora, supported by a strong group of armed men, has taken to the mountains, where he is preparing to make war against the nationalist government.

The government has the situation well in hand, and officials claim there is no possible chance of the revolution succeeding. However the episode foreshadows an era of internal trouble in Turkey. Discontent is spreading rapidly. The people are nervous and restless after more than ten years of almost continuous warfare.

One of the chief causes of discontent is the wretched living condition of the bulk of the population. On account of the long period of warfare, the people are compelled to suffer endless privations. Food and money are scarce and rents are high.

Turkish officials feel that the Allies are eagerly watching the situation and hoping that revolution does break out so that they can impose terms upon this country that were contemplated when the Sevres treaty was framed. Their chief desire is to take the Turkish straits away from Turkey.

GIVES UP HIS TITLE

Prince Insists on Marriage to American Girl.

Grandson of Late King of Montenegro to Become Plain "Mr." When He Weds Detroit Woman.

When Prince Oleg Vladimirovich, grandson of the late King Nicholas of Montenegro, and cousin of Queen Helena of Italy, marries Miss Louise MacLachlan, formerly of Detroit, Michigan, he will drop his title and become plain Mr. Rodomar. This was the wish of Miss MacLachlan, who refused to become a princess by her marriage.

Miss MacLachlan will be married in Athens, probably in the palace in which the Near East relief bureau has its headquarters. Since the devastation of Smyrna, Miss MacLachlan has been a worker for the bureau.

Miss MacLachlan is twenty-five years of age and the prince is twenty-seven.

"Louise went to Smyrna a year ago in May," Mrs. MacLachlan, mother of the prince's fiancée, said in Detroit recently, "on a visit to her uncle, Dr. Alexander MacLachlan, president of the American college there. From the first she wrote us about Prince Rodomar. She said he was young and handsome, but so haughty that she felt inclined to be independent with him, because no one else apparently dared to be."

"Then she began to write of him as 'Roddy.' They had known each other only a short time when the prince himself wrote asking our permission to marry Louise. At first we would not give in because we do not approve of international marriages. But in spite of our opposition they refused to break their engagement."

"Louise wrote that she had taken Rodomar in hand and was teaching him how to economize and save money. She said he had lost all his property in the war, but now that they had become engaged she told him she would not be married until he could provide a home for her, as American men do for the girls they marry. His wardrobe was once source of extravagance, she wrote, but she amused us by saying she had made him promise not to buy any new clothes until they were married."

"Another proviso of their engagement, she said, was that he drop his title and renounce its claims. Louise did not want to be a princess. She always had contempt for girls who marry for titles. She wanted a business man for her husband, and she will have one, because the prince is now in the employ of the Standard Oil company at Salonica, where they will make their home."

The prince was born in Russia while his parents were in exile from Montenegro. He was educated in a military school in Russia, but ran away to join the army of the czar at the beginning of war. He was decorated for bravery—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Byron Had a Club Foot.

The following from the autobiography of Miss Frances Power Cobbe may be of interest. "Shortly before my visit to Athens an article, or book, by Mr. Trelawney had been published in England, in which that writer asserted that Byron's lame leg was a most portentous deformity. Like the fleshless leg of a satyr, I mentioned this to Mr. Findlay, who laughed and said: 'That reminds me of what Byron said of Trelawney: "If we could but make Trelawney wash his hands and speak the truth, we might make a gentleman of him!" Of course,' continued Mr. Findlay, 'I saw Byron's legs scores of times, for we bathed together daily whenever we were near the sea or a river, and there was nothing wrong with the leg, only an ordinary, and not very bad clubfoot.' Dr. Samuel Smiles writes in "Character": "Nor would it at first sight have been supposed that Lord Byron was affected with shyness, and yet he was a victim on a visit to Mrs. Pico at Southwell, when he saw strangers approaching, he would instantly jump out of the window, and escape onto the lawn to avoid them." Sir Walter Scott was lame as the result of an accident in early childhood.

Trick of "Tip Takers" Pays.

The normally timid person who lives in terror of waiters, taxi drivers, hat check boys, barbers and other tip assessors might be surprised to know that this class sometimes resorts to trickery to keep its revenue sufficient.

One of the subtlest schemes is the adroit manipulation of a coin plate by the guardians of a check room. The plate lies ready for gratuities, but unguarded, giving the impression that the employees are too busy with their work to bother about the size of the coins deposited. In reality, the coins on the plate are mostly dimes—quarters and 50-cent pieces—placed there by the employees themselves as an insinuation to pikers that nickels and dimes are simply unheard of. And when some doughty hand does place one of the phibelian pieces among the more aristocratic currency the poor thing is promptly cached lest it encourage the parsimonious.—New York Sun & Globe.

FEW BIRDS RELY ON SMELL

Only Three Are Known to Make Use of This Sense—the Dove, Buzzard and Jay.

It is a rather curious fact that only three of the common birds seem to make any constant use of their valuable sense of smell, says the Review of Reviews. These are the turtle dove (close relative of the famous, now extinct passenger pigeon) the turkey buzzard and the famous Canada Jay, common about hunters' camps in the north-eastern woods.

Hunters believe that the "whisky jacks," as they are commonly called, assemble as soon as they detect the smoke of a campfire, and the writer has seen them coming from a distance, in the deep forest where a campfire had been kindled, to watch the builders of it, and steal any "grub" they could find. They are as "bold as brass" about this operation, as the hunters say. The present writer has had them pilfer bacon he held in his very hands, in the Canadian woods.

The buzzards gather freely wherever carrion is displayed. They are valuable as scavengers, and are protected by the laws of several states. Their aerial movements often reveal the whereabouts of a dead horse or cow, on which they gather for a grand feast. This is plainly the result of the operation of their sense of smell, which must be preternaturally acute. They are never seen to attack any creature that shows a sign of life, but they will sit around, gravely silent, and watch an expiring cow until she is quite dead, and then descend for their feast, which is a ravenous one and thoroughly completed.

There are plenty of visible evidences that these birds actually do rely upon their sense of smell for this work, yet the same sort of evidence seems to be lacking from the other birds who eat putrid tissue, and must know its odor. The northern trappers hate this feathered robber, which they often find clutched in a trap they had carefully set for a mink or other fur-bearing mammal. If a Canada Jay, or a buzzard finds such a trap, he is pretty likely to rob and spring it, and it is little satisfaction to the trapper to find the lifeless bird in the trap's jaws.

USE INDIAN CANOES IN ITALY

American Craft Becomes Popular and Are Manufactured in Large Numbers.

The American Indian canoe, which for centuries has plied only the streams and lakes of the North American continent, has at last found its way to the classic "yellow Tiber." Canoeing has become a favorite river sport of the Romans. On Sunday a dozen or more of the frail Indian craft can be seen in the yellow waters gliding along the shores in company with skiffs, shells, sculls and motor boats.

The graceful Indian water conveyance has become so popular that an Italian firm has commenced the manufacture of them. They took several American canoes as models and then began turning them out by the scores. A canoe club also has been organized, and many Americans have joined. Paddling to the perfection of the Indians has not yet been achieved. The Romans make vain efforts to keep the canoe headed straight but a change of paddles is necessary after every few strokes.

Worst Hurricane on Record.

The most terrible cyclone of modern times was probably that of October 10, 1780, which has been specially named "the great hurricane."

Starting from Barbados, where neither trees nor dwellings were left standing, it caused an English fleet anchored off St. Lucia to disappear, and completely ravaged this island, where 6,000 persons were crushed under the ruins.

After this the whirlwind, tending toward Martinique, enveloped a convoy of French transports, and sunk more than forty ships, carrying 4,000 soldiers; on land the towns of St. Pierre and other places were completely razed by the wind, and 9,000 persons perished there. More to the north, Dominique, St. Eustatius, St. Vincent and Porto Rico were likewise devastated, and most of the vessels which were in the path of the cyclone foundered with all their crews. Beyond Porto Rico the tempest bent to the northeast toward the Bermudas, and though its violence gradually diminished, it sunk several English warships returning to Europe.

Questioning the Judge.

Aunt Jinny, a Carolina negress, was a great advocate of the rod as a help in child-rearing. As a result of an unmerciful beating which she gave her youngest and "ornamental," she was brought into court one day by outraged neighbors.

The judge, after giving her a severe lecture, asked if she had anything to say. "Just one thing, judge," she replied. "I wants to ax you a question. Was you ever the parent of a perfectly worthless cullud child?"—Everybody's Magazine.

Improved Aerial Photography.

Formerly only an area of three quarters of a square mile could be covered with one picture taken by aerial photography, but a new method has been worked out by which it is claimed that an area as great as fifteen square miles can be shown on each picture.

"The highways are built for the pleasure and profit of everybody. Most drivers realize this and always show the proper consideration for the other fellow. Those who don't, sooner or later earn for themselves that universally disliked title—a road hog."

(The Veteran Motorist)

"JUST a word to every motor truck driver who reads this paper. I've wanted to say something especially to you for a long time, but have kept putting it off. I was afraid you fellows might think I'm one of those high-brows trying to preach a sermon on something I know nothing about."

"Far from it! I've driven a truck a good many times, and I know what it is. It's a man's job. And what I want to say is simply this: because the average truck is so much bigger than the average car, why not give the car driver just a shade better than an even chance to pass you, without having to slide off the macadam or asphalt in doing it?"

"I don't believe that a single truck driver ever really means to hog the road. But a good many times he forgets. All he's got to do is to stick to his half of the road, and he's 'done his duty'. And it's better for everyone concerned. Incidentally, I understand that every driver in the big, attractive Socony fleet of trucks has special instructions to keep his machine well over to the right—never to hog the road."

HOLD QUEER JOBS

Woman Testifies She Pokes
Fires for a Living.

London Firm Supplies Attendants for Dogs, While Good Conversationalists Are Always in Demand.

The woman who stated in court recently that she earned a living by poking fires is only one of the many hundreds of people who follow occupations of which most folks have never heard.

This curious form of employment is common in big cities where Jews are numerous. By rabbinical law Jews are forbidden to mend or tend to any fires on their Sabbath. As many as 60 houses may be visited by these professional firemen, who receive a small fee from each.

Strange as this may be, there are many stranger ways of making a living. For example, a good conversationalist need never be "down and out." Some employment agencies are always on the lookout for interesting talkers to entertain insomnia victims at night. A sufferer from this complaint actually pays a retainer fee to a woman well known in the West End of London for her bright and vivacious conversation.

Just as little known is the work of men who take dogs for an airing. There is in London at least one firm which, at the shortest notice, supplies dog attendants, who may be called by women to take charge of their pets in the parks.

This strange "profession" is not such a sinecure as it would appear. Thefts of valuable dogs have been increasing very rapidly in recent times; and the thieves are very ingenious in their methods. So where valuable animals are taken for an airing only people who are up to the tricks of these pests can be entrusted with them.

Another little known way of earning a living is the work of the searchers at the British museum. These men are employed chiefly in looking up references dealing with heraldry, genealogy, and the history of ancestral mansions or of regiments—anything and everything indeed. Many of the searchers have been employed in the queerest tasks imaginable. In one case a three years' quest produced evidence, found in the ruins of some ancient parchment, regarding the disputed ownership of a rich seam of coal in Yorkshire. This resulted in a gain of £37,000 for the man's employer.

It is not only in London that one finds queer trades; they abound in many parts of the country.—London Answers.

A Responsive Chord.

Betty Brown, the prettiest girl in the village, was blest with a father who snubbed all the young men who came to see her. One evening a bashful young man named Samuel Green called.

After the trio had sat together in silence for some time, the young man ventured to remark:

"It looks as though it might rain, sir."

"It's not going to rain," was Father Brown's gruff reply.

For nearly half an hour there was complete silence. Finally the old man's curiosity got the better of him.

"Who are you?" he growled.

"Samuel Green," was the response.

"What? Not old Tom Green's son?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, then," exclaimed the father, frowning, "it may rain, it may rain!"

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BANKERS' BEST HELP

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Newspaper advertising is the surest way for a bank to increase its business.

W. R. Morehouse, vice president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, Los Angeles, Cal., said yesterday in an address before the Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers' Association, in convention here.

"Newspapers go into the homes," he said, "and by their use as a medium the people of a whole community may be reached in a single day. Because a bank cannot directly trace a large volume of new business to newspaper advertising does not prove that the medium is ineffective as a business builder. Because you do not see readers studying your advertisements is not sufficient evidence that they are not read."

The Kingston district superintendent of the M. E. Church, the Rev. G. W. Grinton, received word Monday that the next session of the annual conference would be held in Calvary Church, New York, 129th street and 7th avenue.

Calvary Church has become the center of the "Black Belt" and has been sold to the Salem congregation of Colored Methodists.

The Calvary congregation has secured a new site on University avenue in the Bronx, and this will be their last opportunity of entertaining the conference in the old church. Hence the invitation and its acceptance.

HOW TO BUY APPLES

Geneva Station To Show When and How Varieties Should Be Used.

Horticulturists at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva are making plans for an extensive exhibit at the Eastern States Apple Show to be held in New York city in November, according to a recent statement issued by the station authorities. The apple show is intended primarily to acquaint consumers with the merits of eastern-grown fruit and many exhibitors will be made by growers and educational institutions including the agricultural colleges and experiment stations of the eastern states.

Present plans for the exhibit of the Geneva Station call for a rack of apples occupying a space of about seventy-five feet. The varieties to be shown will be selected with reference to the season of the year when they are to be found on the market and with regard to the purpose for which they are used, such as dessert, cooking, etc. In this way visitors to the show will find before them not only the fruit itself, but information regarding the season of the year when any particular variety may be found on the market and the best varieties for any particular purpose at different seasons.

"The primary object of our exhibit," say the station specialists, "is to make it possible for the consumer to buy apples intelligently. To go into a store and ask for 'just apples' is not enough, if one is to get the fullest return for money expended. It is as necessary to specify the kind of apple wanted for any particular purpose as it is to specify the cut of meat desired if the consumer is to enjoy fully the delight of good apples."

Dainty Frock for Flappers to Wear

Satin Outfit With Accordion Plaiting and Applique Rosettes.

The black satin frock belongs exclusively to the flapper, asserts a fashion writer in the Washington Star. It has saucy little plaited frills suggesting sleeves, and a diminutive yoke dotted with countless tiny ribbon rosebuds. At one side the yoke effect is carried out by a panel of the same width of satin, also trimmed with applique rosettes, which extends the length of the gown, touching its hem. A border of narrow white lace gives an additional touch of piquancy to this panel, and is effectively contrasted against the somber black background. The frock itself is of black satin, accordion-plaited, with a long-bloused bodice and an equally long skirt. A wide sash of unplaited satin passes through a narrow opening in the side panel and ties in a fluffy bow at the opposite hip. The ends are daintily frilled with lace to correspond with that on the rosebud-dotted side piece.

Youthful Frock of Black Satin, Accordion Plaited.

The latest flapper fancy in mill.

very is the "Valentino" hat. One can picture every other small miss on the street wearing a small mannish South American chapeau, with strings tied saucily under her chin! The modistes should really revive the velvet bolero to go with it, and perhaps they will—one never can tell. To return to the "Valentino"—the establishment introducing it fashions the chapeau of stiff black felt. The flat crown is circled by one pista band of grosgrain ribbon, also in black, and the short ends dangle just an inch or so over the edge of the brim. Longer streamers of black grosgrain are fastened at each side of the brim, to tie in a loose knot below the chin of the wearer.

Furnish Sun Room to Get Pleasing Effect

The sun room has become so popular that it has virtually added a room to the house.

When furnishing and decorating a sun room, or any other room, one should always bear in mind the effect that color will create for both seasons of the year. For example, in one sun room the window construction converted it into an outdoor porch for the summer months. It was furnished with red-and-black wicker, with carpets and draperies to match. This color scheme, while stimulating and bright for winter, is entirely too brilliant and warm for the summer. The advisability of purchasing gray, cream, pale-green or natural-colored wicker or painted furniture for year-round furnishing can readily be proved to be excellent, as these colors can be made to appear warm or cool looking with the addition of colorful cushions and accessories. Wicker flower stands enable the homemaker to keep her choice of growing seasonable blooms in stylish fashion, while the new standing or hanging bird cages and goldfish bowls refresh one by a mere sight of them.—Deine-a-act.

WHY THE ENFORCED REST.

While out on a friendly visit to some folks in the country I reached the home just after another visitor had given her ankle a severe sprain.

It was a typical sprain, everything around the joint torn, with the usual swelling and discoloration.

I gave her the usual advice as to the treatment—rest, rest, complete rest, with the limb always supported on a chair.

After thanking me she said

"Well my own doctor will not like to be sorry to hear of this."

"Well he has been pleading with me for months to get off my feet or he would not be responsible for the consequences. Now I'll have to be off my feet."

Now this was from a woman of more than average intelligence. But she was so obsessed with the importance of her work, (and she was doing a big work for suffering humanity) that she simply would not obey orders.

There are so many people like that. It isn't always that they think they know more than the doctor, but their work is so dear to them, and they think they'll take the chance.

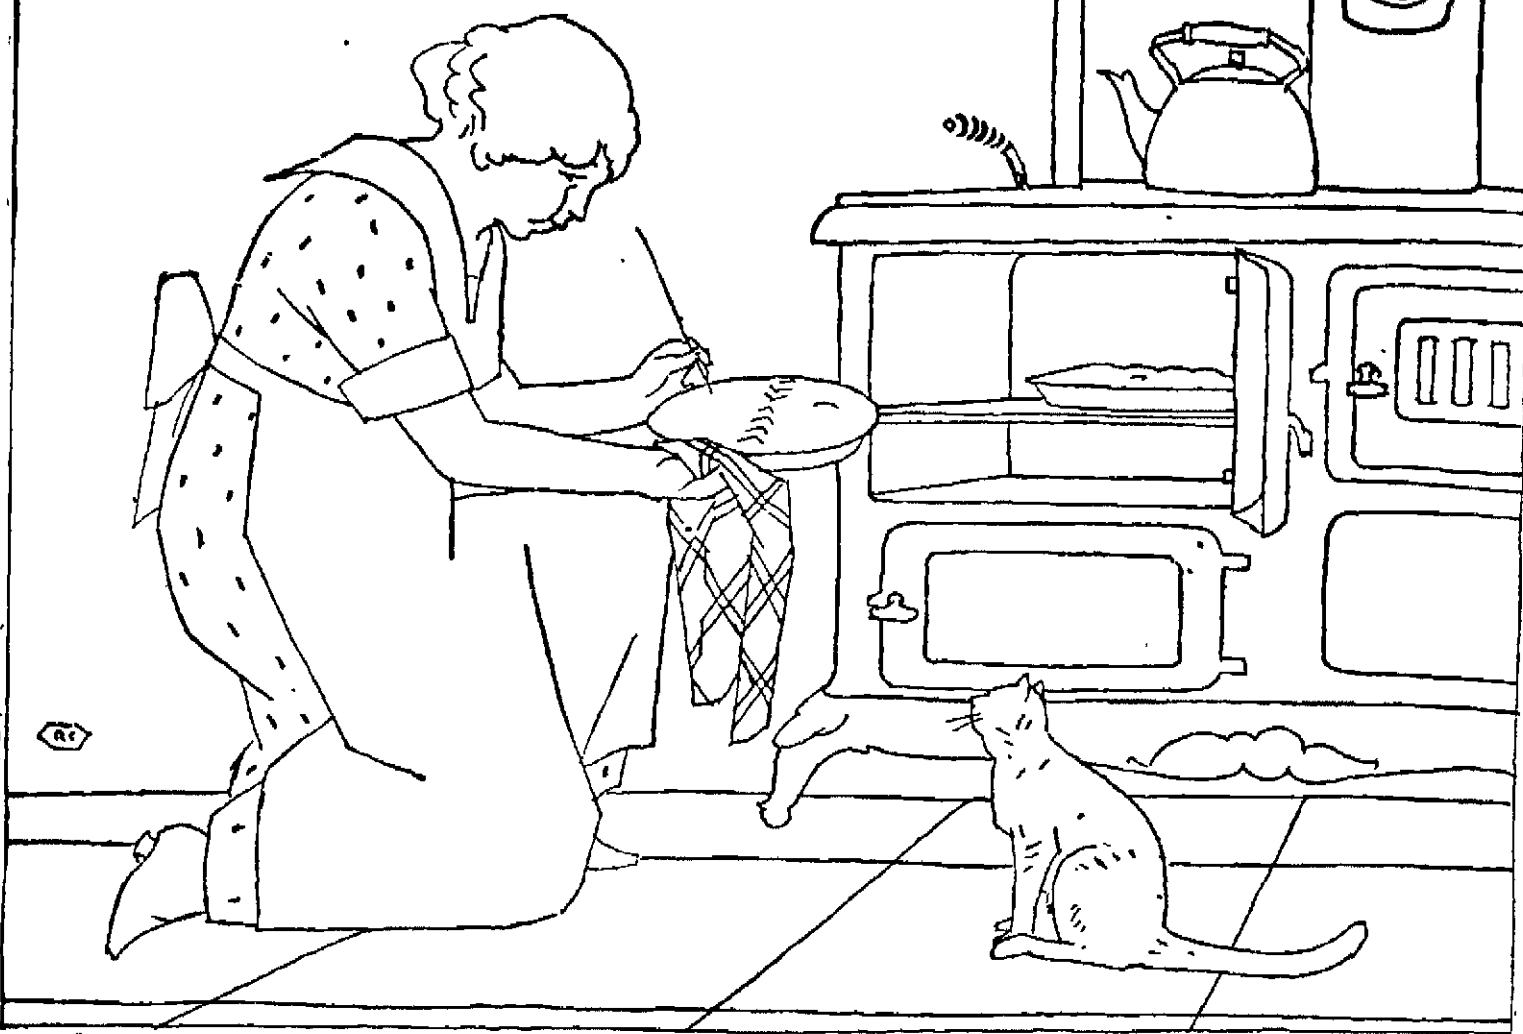

It's just a bit shortsighted, because

New England cooks were famous for their pies even before they had

Snowdrift

Now—with Snowdrift—Umm

Nature pays all her debts and the active life of these people is shortened by many years.

You see the man or woman who is active mentally and physically and has some weak part pointed out to them by their physician, is apt to carry on just a little too far.

Without knowing it, they are as we say in athletics "running on their nerve."

In a well run mile race you know, the runner is supposed to be hardly conscious the last two hundred yards. He must give everything. He is trained and soon recuperated after a short rest.

These people who work on against their physician's orders, working on their nerve collapse often, and as they are not in good condition from training (far otherwise in fact) their collapse is often fatal. It's worth giving a thought, isn't it?

Command of Power Vital.

The big, controlling fact in modern life is the command of power. Primitive man had his own muscles. But not till he learned to harness the forces of nature did he win to real earth mastery.—Chicago Journal.

Cost of Governing Has Doubled in Last 10 Years.

100 PER CAPITA ANNUALLY

Government is now costing approximately $100 a year for each man, woman and child in the United States, according to a report made by the United States census bureau at Washington as to federal, state, municipal and county taxes have progressed sufficiently to warrant the broad statement that the average per capita cost of government of all kinds in this country is about $100 annually.

If this cost were spread evenly over 110,000,000 inhabitants of the United States, there would be many families whose entire earnings would be taken for government alone, leaving nothing for food, clothing, housing and other necessities of life. Many families of five in this country do not have a total income of $500 a year, which would be its cost for government on a straight-out per capita basis.

Enormous Local Increases

Figures now in the hands of the census bureau officials show enormous increases in local taxation, state and municipal, during the last decade. The best figures are for the year 1922, and these serve to show that in the last year period state taxes have more than doubled, while the municipal taxes in many cities have trebled. Complete figures are available for seven states of about fifty of the largest cities. Most of the cities run around $80 a year, but a lower per capita cost in the country tends to cut down the average throughout the nation.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, known as the "watch dog of the treasury" and the "statistical wizard of congress" because he has specialized on money problems of the United States, in the appropriations of billions of dollars annually and the collection of revenue to make the payments possible, says that the people of this country have several weapons in their hands which may be used in beating down the ever-mounting costs of government. Here are the major points in the program he outlined:

Puts Budget System First.

1.—United support of the American people for the budget system, even though it means the loss of an appropriation for some particular thing the community is interested in. The budget has accomplished great economies in the few years it has been in use by the United States government, but it will stand or fall according to the support it receives from the people.

2.—Adoption of a constitutional amendment to prohibit further issuance of all tax-exempt securities. Senator Smoot holds that the present system not only allows the wealthy to escape their fair share of the financial burden of government by putting their money into tax-exempt securities, but the favorable market afforded such securities is a constant incentive to state and federal governments to spend.

3.—Any new proposal for joint federal-state aid should be rejected out of hand, no matter how meritorious it may seem, according to Senator Smoot. The plan whereby the federal government matches dollar for dollar appropriations made by the various states for good roads and similar improvements is already costing the United States tens of millions of dollars annually, but its worst evil, as Smoot sees it, lies in the fact it often encourages states to make expenditures they cannot afford on the false premise that it costs them only half price.

4.—When new propositions for expenditures are advanced, Smoot would have the fact emphasized to the taxpayer that in the last analysis it is he who pays the bill. To put the idea in the words of the Utah senator, "Let the taxpayer ask himself not just whether it is a worthy object, but whether it is worth the cost."

Effect on Living Cost.
While the tax burden is not distributed upon a per capita basis, the fact that $100 a year goes to government for every person in the United States means that it enters into the cost of living in some form or another for the rich and poor alike. The present high cost of living is attributable in a small degree to the high cost of government.

The analysis of costs of government have been completed for Wisconsin, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Minnesota, Michigan, Kentucky and Illinois, and the statisticians are at work on others. Here are the per capita costs of state government:

Wisconsin, $12.92 in 1922, $6.41 in 1921; Rhode Island, $11.84 in 1922, $12 in 1921; New Jersey, $16.91 in 1922, $6.53 in 1921; Minnesota, $17.00 in 1922, as against $7.54 in 1921; Michigan, $24.07 in 1922, $5.86 in 1921; Kentucky, $7.74 in 1922, $3.69 in 1921; Illinois, $7.33 in 1922, $3.16 in 1921.

The cost of government in the cities shows even greater increases than those of the general state governments. New York, Providence, Jersey City and San Francisco all run well over $40 per capita as the cost of government without even the cost of state government being figured in.

TRAFFIC TRANSMISSION an exclusive feature of the 1924 CHANDLER

Easiest and Safest Car to Drive

AS the feature of its 1924 models, Chandler presents the biggest advance in motor car construction since the self-starter—the Traffic Transmission.

The starter overcame the evils of cranking. The Traffic Transmission does away with the terrors of shifting gears, eliminating completely the great trial of motoring—the difficulties of maneuvering through congested city traffic.

A totally new principle is involved. Its first appearance on passenger cars is made in the 1924 Chandler. So sound are its fundamentals that it seems destined for general adoption. For the present, however, only Chandler owners can enjoy the unusual delight it gives to driving. It is built complete in the Chandler plant.

Many manufacturers would have been content to give the public, in any one year, the

Pikes Peak Motor

But Chandler now adds to its triumphs the Traffic Transmission so that even the most inexperienced and timorous driver may fully enjoy the masterly performance powers of the motor which so rapidly won America's respect and admiration.

In the 1924 Chandler, the Pikes Peak Motor remains essentially unchanged, save for an important improvement in the oiling system and certain refinements that make its operation flawlessly smooth and noiseless. These changes are based on the experience of thousands of users, many of whom have driven Chandler cars with Pikes Peak Motors 15000, 18000, and 20000 miles, since January last.

All those who have vainly battled with the perplexities and noise of the old-fashioned gear shift, will naturally want to test for themselves the amazing improvement in driving convenience provided by the Traffic Transmission.

Change at Any Speed Gears Cannot Clash Anybody Can Do It Safest Brake on Hills Nothing New to Learn

At all speeds in the normal driving range, whether going up hill or down, the change is made without clashing or grinding, and with perfect safety and surety.

For braking purposes it is possible to change from high gear back to second at 35 miles an hour, and from second to low when occasion arises. No dexterity, experience or practice is necessary. Anyone can do it the first time—and with the pressure of the little finger on the gear shift lever.

Gone forever is the uncertainty of shifting gears and its attendant danger on hills and in heavy traffic. Thousands who have been kept from the driver's seat by the perplexities of the old transmission can now become happy motorists.

The Traffic Transmission insures a positive, silent, instantaneous change under every condition because its construction eliminates the fundamental fault of the old transmission—that of trying to mesh two gears that are spinning at different speeds. The gears of the Traffic Transmission are always in mesh. Their teeth, instead of being chipped and shattered by unsuccessful shifts, actually improve with service.

Silence Despite Power

With the revolutionary Traffic Transmission, the improved and practically noiseless Pikes Peak Motor, the long-lived Chandler chassis with its rugged rear axle, its efficient brakes and feather-weight steering, with handsome comfortable bodies and at record prices—the 1924 Chandler offers value without precedent.

Do not fail to see it! Do not fail to drive it!

NAUGHTY RAIN

"Just at times I cannot help being naughty," said the King of the Clouds. "I should say that was true all right," said Old Man Weather as he laughed.

"Well, you help me, too, you know," said the King of the Clouds. "Of course I do," said Old Man Weather. "And I get abused for it, too. Ah, yes, my friend, I do not get so much praise when I play with you. In fact, I am scolded more than you are."

"One hears far more scolding about the Weather than about the Rain itself."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "it is quite worth the scolding."

"Yes," Old Man Weather agreed, "it is."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "it was fun last night. My children and grandchildren ran races all along the streets—dashing so hard and so fast—and rushing along."

"People said we were coming down in sheets. Of course we weren't. We don't need any bed linen. But we were coming down good and fast and the races did become exciting."

"Then some one said it looked as though all the rain were trying to get somewhere, for we were hurrying along so fast—just skipping wildly over the pavements."

"We've all been having a frolic, certainly, even though we've been naughty."

"You were certainly naughty," said Old Man Weather. "How many umbrellas did you and your family blow inside out?"

"I didn't keep count," said the King of the Clouds. "Mr. Wind helped us do that. Oh, he is fine in that game."

"Yes, you're a splendid pair for naughtiness when you get started and then you have all your families to help you."

"Well, well, to think only the day before the river nearly was so calm."

"He Was Proud."

and the opposite shore looked so near to those who were on the other side, and the river and the shore were talking about boats and fishes and one thing and another.

"Then the day before that everything was so bright and clear and the colors were so blue along the river and it looked as though it were never going to rain."

"Well," said the King of the Clouds, "I must say that I didn't know two days ago or a day ago what I was going to do. It was one of those lovely parties one gets up on the spur of the moment, which means that they're parties suddenly begun."

"Yes," said Old Man Weather, "and people were out in their fine summer clothes and their good hats and their best shoes and you surprised them—and didn't stop as though Prince Shower were managing things."

"Prince Shower is different from you, King of the Clouds."

"Yes," agreed the King of the Clouds, "he is. Prince Shower gets rather tired of doing anything for very long at a time."

"I'm different from that. Very different, indeed. And if you say I gave the people a surprise party, too—well, that, too, adds to my naughtiness and I was thoroughly naughty this last time, thoroughly naughty."

"You were, you were, but Old Man Weather is to blame, too, and so is Mr. Wind."

"What's that?" whistled Mr. Wind. "What's that you say of me, Old Man Weather?"

And when he heard what it was that Old Man Weather had said, instead of being angry he was proud and stuck out his chest and puffed and blew and snorted.

Then the King of the Clouds and Old Man Weather and Mr. Wind whistled this song:

Sometimes we three are ever so bad, But it makes us feel happy and gay and glad.

SOUR MILK AND CREAM DISHES

Sour cream and sour milk may be used in numberless ways in cookery and salad dressing, so the thrifty housewife will never have a bit to waste. Sour cream is delicious on chopped cabbage with a little sugar, a sprinkling of salt and just enough vinegar to give it zest if the cream is not thoroughly soured.

Rice Pancakes.—Beat one egg in a bowl, then add one cupful of tender cooked rice, one cupful of sour milk, one teaspoonful of melted shortening. Measure and sift together one tablespoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda and one cupful of pastry flour. Add to the first mixture and beat well. If fried in deep fat drop by spoonfuls into the fat. If fried as cakes on a griddle add a tablespoonful of fat instead of a teaspoonful and cook on a hot griddle. Serve with cider and sugar or sauce.

Sour Milk Cake.—Cream together one-half cupful of shortening and one cupful of brown sugar. Measure and sift together one-fourth teaspoonful each of nutmeg, cinnamon, clove and salt, one teaspoonful of soda, one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour, and add last one cupful of seeded raisins well floured. Beat two eggs until light, add the first mixture and alternate the flour mixture with the milk until well blended. A little baking powder may be added to the flour and one-half teaspoonful of soda instead of the teaspoonful of soda. Bake in a sheet; while hot butter and sprinkle with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

Gingerbread Drop Cakes.—Beat an egg until light, add one cupful of molasses, one cupful of sour milk, one-half cupful of melted shortening, one and one-quarter cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with one teaspoonful of soda, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of ginger, one-fourth teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg and a dash of cloves. Mix well and drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheets. Bake about twenty minutes. If sour cream is used add only two tablespoonfuls of melted shortening.

It was in the Seventeenth century that the wig found its maximum development in the peruke. The Abbe La Riviere, it appears, started it all by attending the court of Louis XIII in a wig. ## RUG BUYER GOES INTO ARABIAN NIGHTS LAND.

Across desert and flood land into the historic region made famous by Omar Khayam and Haroun-al-Raschid was the mission of a commercial buyer who has just returned to New York after a 30,000 mile trip in quest of Oriental rugs. As bizarre and colorful as if it had been taken from the Arabian Nights is the tale of his six months' wandering under strange skies in the unending search for merchandise.

The traveler in question is B. L. Mac Callum, buyer of Oriental rugs for R. H. Macy & Co., Inc. Between dodging murderous Bedouins in the Syrian Desert and haggling with wily rug peddlers in Hamadan and Teheran, Mr. Mac Callum had opportunity to study the temper and manners of a people whose customs are still as primitive as they were centuries ago, in a land where railroads and electric light have not yet penetrated, where in the hilly regions natives may perish of cold and in the lowlands suffocate in a heat which reaches 130 degrees.

Mr. Mac Callum left New York early in February, stopped in for a look at the London rug market and then was off for the Orient. From Marseilles he journeyed to Port Said and through the Suez Canal and the Red Sea to Aden. Then he crossed the Arabian Sea to Bombay, India, and up to Karuchi, from there entering the Persian Gulf and passing on into Mesopotamia by way of the Euphrates to Bagdad.

Here the real adventure started. Eastward the route lay into the heart of Persia, by camel, mule and wagon. Across desolate wastes, flat and hot, with the sun unrelenting in its fierceness, he wended his way to Kirmanshah, Hamadan and Teheran, time-honored Persian cities, whose claim to the attention of the busy western world today lies in the wonderful rugs they weave.

The commercial buyer, who knows the comforts of Pullman, taxicab and hotel and treads the carpets of sumptuous showrooms in the metropolis will hardly be attracted by the long days of travel on the back of a heaving dromedary, with only suffocating dust and bandit alarms to break the deadly monotony of the journey. The traveler in this part of the world carries an armed guard with him to fight off the marauding pirates of the desert.

These pirates, much more truculent and oppressive than the cinema has even attempted to picture them, are mainly Bedouins, entire tribes of them roaming the desert lands of Syria and Mesopotamia. Woe be to the unprotected traveler who happens on the horizon when they are in mood belligerent.

Mr. Mac Callum crossed safely into the heart of Persia, where he immediately centered his attention on Hamadan, Sulthanabad and Kirmanshah, cities noted for the beauty of their rugs.

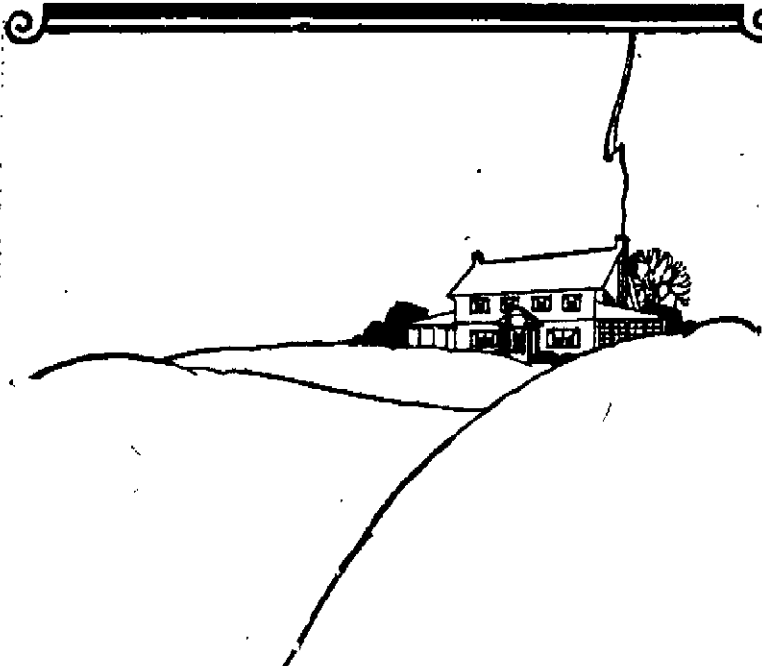

The whole process of Oriental rug buying is a law unto itself. The tricks of the trade are many, and wary indeed must the American buyer be, for he must often deal with rug brokers or peddlers, who will travel to him for miles, and with whom he will haggle assiduously for a single rug. Personal supervision is the keynote of his activities. No only does he select and examine each rug himself, but he will also do the measuring and weighing, personally superintend the sorting and baling, and not relax his vigil until the consular invoice is in his hand, and the merchandise properly insured, tagged and baled, already started on its journey to New York.

When Mr. MacCallum operated in a town he would arrange for temporary warehouse facilities and there store each rug as it was purchased until he had enough for a shipment. The rugs are sorted and divided into lots of equal weight, so that when they are loaded, the burden will be equally distributed on the camel's back. The camel is as meticulous as the railroad in his shipping rules; he will carry 500 pounds, but no more, and go plodding across the sands with it at a steady two and a half miles an hour clip. In the baling of the rugs, each lot is carefully wrapped in layers of gunny sack and tar paper and the bale is finally fastened by iron hoops so it cannot be tampered with on the journey.

From the heart of Persia the rugs are carried by camel and motor car to a point 75 miles north of Bagdad, where they are transferred to a little railroad, and later a lighter, which travels down the Tigris river to Basrah in a week's time.

There connections may be made with a date steamer sailing for New York, or else the shipment goes on to another port of call, where a vessel can pick up the cargo for New York.

Mr. MacCallum spent a good deal of time in Kirmanshah, of importance in the rug trade because it is a caravan center. Kirmanshah's rugs are very old and beautiful, but there are only a few of these antiques in existence. They are valued higher than the Stradivarius violins. Kirmanshah receives by caravan many of the modern rugs made in Kirman, 800 miles away. These are frequently sold in the market today as Kirmanshah rugs. The Kirman sheep have

The unsuspecting cat has many kinsfolk in the matter of names. Conspicuous among these is the cattab. The naming of this common denizen of fresh water has been explained in more ways than one, and the reader may take his choice. One recognized authority contents himself with the statement that the name, as commonly applied to the fishes of the family Siluridae, is in allusion to the long barbels or feelers about the mouth, which have been considered as resembling the whiskers of a cat. This explanation is widely accepted, but other authorities set forth a probable reason for the name in the statement that when a fish of this species is captured and brought to the surface he makes a sound like the purring of a cat. Another offers both the barbels and the purring and throws in the added suggestion that the name was influenced by "some other fancied resemblance to a cat."—Nature Magazine.

BANKERS ARE NATURAL EDUCATORS

They See Farther Ahead Than Most of Us and are in Position to Advise Masses, Says Speaker at Bankers' Convention.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—The economic stability of America depends largely upon educating the masses to the proposition that remote consequences must not be overlooked in the evolution of plans of progress, William A. Scott, director of the School of Commerce at the University of Wisconsin, said today in a speech before the general convention of the American Bankers' association. Depression following the war, he added, is attributable to the neglect of remote consequences. "We must learn to see the things that are not obvious," continued Mr. Scott. "There probably are many reasons why we don't see and therefore neglect remote consequences. One is the very fact of their remoteness. What is present and directly before us strikes our vision, obtrudes itself upon us. We cannot neglect it if we would. One might wreck innumerable railroad trains and kill multitudes of passengers before learning to run a locomotive by simply pushing and pulling the levers and observing what happens. In this case some knowledge of the mechanism is essential to success. The same thing is true of the social machine. Endless experimentation may yield only negative results and it may be hopelessly wrecked long before we have finished finding out what to do."

"The war greatly increased the expenses of government and made higher taxes necessary. On the principle that the people should contribute to the support of government according to their abilities we levied graduated income taxes. What we saw were the increased public revenues and the distribution of taxes according to a principle we believed to be just. What we did not see were the diversion of capital from essential industries to public uses through investment in tax-free securities and the partial defeat of the very ends in view."

"During the war we also arbitrarily restricted the prices of a large number of commodities. What we saw was the prevention of profiteering and the stimulation of the production of war materials and supplies. What we did not see was a remote consequence—the disturbance of the normal price and profit element upon which the successful and normal operation of our entire economic mechanism depends, interference with the normal flow of investment streams, the over-equipment of some industries, the under-equipment of others and the fostering of the belief that the government is omnipotent in economic matters and can arbitrarily adjust prices and profits to suit its own ideas of justice or expediency or to meet the desire of blocs or classes that may chance to be politically dominant."

"Early in our history the practice of exempting incomes from taxation bonds issued for public purposes was inaugurated and has been persistently adhered to. What we saw were lower interest charges and taxes and the avoidance of friction between the federal and state governments. What we did not see were the interference of the practice with the working out of an equitable taxation system and the diversion of capital from industry and commerce to public improvements at a critical period in our history."

"The farmers have for some time and still are suffering from the fact that prices of some of their staple crops are relatively low. What they need and want is higher prices. The government arbitrarily fixed these prices at a high level during the war. Therefore, it is recommended that it should do the same thing again. The immediate consequences, better incomes or the elimination of losses for the farmers are alone seen. The remote consequences are not seen and are disregarded."

"Banks are best fitted to carry on a campaign of education among the masses. The principles of money and banking have an important place in the educational program. Ignorance concerning them is dense and widespread and at present very dangerous. Banks are closely in touch with all classes of business and they have been forced to study the basic facts and principles of our economic system."

26,000,000
SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 26.—Twenty-six million Americans, nearly one-fourth of the nation's population, have savings accounts in state and national banks, Samuel H. Beach of Rome, N. Y., president of the Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers Association, revealed here yesterday at the fifty-ninth annual convention of that organization. Their accounts total $17,300,000,000, Mr. Beach said.

"For purposes of comparison," he added, "we have compiled similar statistics for 1912, the earliest year for which we can obtain comparable data, and find that the aggregate was only about half as much then as in 1922, or only $8,433,000,000. Even more remarkable are the increases of savings deposits in the various classes of banks during the decade between 1912 and 1922. National banks gained 228 per cent, state banks and trust companies, 128 per cent and mutual savings banks fifty-eight per cent."

"The statement that mutual savings banks gained only fifty-eight per cent does not indicate that they are losing ground, because there are mutual savings banks in only eighteen states and there were just as many in 1912 as there are now."

"Two million students in schools now are participating in school banking systems. This is a thirty-four per cent increase over last year. The deposits of the students total $9,618,000, as compared with $5,775,000 in 1922 and $2,800,000 in 1921."

"This gratifying increase of nearly 340 per cent in three years is indicative of real effort on the part of savings banks throughout the nation and should be sufficient evidence that this fertile field soon will be fully covered, to deter the post office department from seeking to enter it, with all the expense and detail connected therewith with which no government bureau is properly equipped to cope."

REPORT ON TELINI
INCIDENT KEPT SECRET

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Paris, Sept. 26.—The Inter-Allied council of ambassadors today reached a decision upon the report of the commission which investigated the Telini assassinations at Janina, but it was kept secret. The council announced that a statement would be issued after the decision sent to Athens and Rome.

The report of the investigating commission absolved Greece from responsibility for the assassination of Italians and maintained that Greece should not pay indemnity. Italy is still insisting that the Greeks were responsible and that they should pay 50,000,000 lire damages. General Telini was a member of the Allied commission fixing the Greek-Albanian frontier. He and four colleagues were assassinated early in August while traveling in a motor car outside of Janina.

Dentes Driving Death Car.

Arrested in New York on a charge of homicide Francis J. Wilson was lodged at the county jail at Poughkeepsie pending further investigation into the death of Edward Cullman of New York caused when an automobile crashed into a tree at Knapp's Corners Sunday last. Thomas Wilson is being held on a technical charge of intoxication. His companions John Riley and Frank Davis are in Vassar Hospital with severe injuries. Wilson denied driving the car but stated he conducted a service station for Dagmar cars in New York. The car which was wrecked was at his shop for repairs.

Poughkeepsie Postpones Zoning.

A clear cut explanation of city planning and zoning was given by Myron West of Chicago to the board of aldermen of Poughkeepsie Monday evening. No definite action was taken. There is already $5,000 in the budget for that purpose. Manager McKay of Newburgh where a home made plan of zoning had been put in operation will be at the next meeting.

CHARGES DISMISSED AGAINST
DUTCHESS WELFARE BOARD

In a decision handed down Monday County Judge C. W. H. Arnold and County Superintendent of the Poor Edward Cox of Dutchess county, dismissed a petition of Cyrus P. Jones seeking the removal of the present members of the Dutchess County Welfare Board. Charges of inefficiency, incompetency, extravagance and mismanagement were brought without foundation. Eight long sessions were held and forty-seven witnesses examined.

A Rigka Rumor.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Riga, Sept. 26.—A peasant revolution was reported today to have broken out in Russia. There is no confirmation of the report and in view of the strength and discipline of the new Russian army it is unlikely. There was a rumor that insurgents had surrounded both Petrograd and Moscow.

Ravines and Glades.

When the sun is streaming down, flecking the foliage of trees and perhaps also of ferns with splashes of light, few photographers can resist taking a picture. Yet these are seldom successful, because when the scene is produced in scale in a photograph the effect is often spotty. This spottiness must be looked for and dodged. If the work is being done against the light care must be taken to shield the lens from any direct rays. In such circumstances the minimum exposure will be found to be quite surprisingly long, and any estimate of it may well be doubled or trebled without any fear of over exposure. To attempt such subjects with the sun behind the camera is to court failure, as all sense of depth will be lost.

Ancient Adding Machine.

That the ancient Inca civilization in Peru possessed an adding and calculating machine has been revealed in the recent discovery by excavators of a knotted cord, or "quipu," in the ruins of a prehistoric tomb. The cord is 10 yards long and contains one hundred knots. Divided into ten unequal sections, these knots represent the odd numbers from 1 to 10. The sections are of different colors, including red, brown, yellow, blue and green, and are separated by silver beads, which represent the even numbers from 2 to 20. By using this simple way of counting, based on the decimal system, rapid calculations can be made.

STAND TORTURE FOR BEAUTY

Many Paris Women Think Nothing of Having Their Noses Broken and Reset

Parisianes are going to such lengths to achieve beauty as quite to put in the shade the painful operation of "disipling" (making a hole in the chin by means of a drugged needle).

Many women think nothing of having their noses broken and reset in a different shape, says a Paris correspondent. Others actually have the eyebrows moved upward or downward, as the fancy dictates. This necessitates a complete removal of the hair and either a false and forced growth in a different position or makeup.

One beauty expert, who undertakes to change the form of a woman's lips, has performed many operations. His latest experiment is to make the upper lip turn up, giving it an alluring pout.

To do this he stretches a thin hair from the upper lip to the tip of the nose. This effect, naturally, is limited to actresses, who use it on the stage only.

Some fashionable women are being laughed at for their insistence on having their cosmetics favored. One has her lip-rouge tasting of banana.

Lincoln Was a Whittier.

Whittier sticks and telling stories were Abraham Lincoln's resources. Bismarck's wife, when Beethoven's "Moonlight" sonata was being played, noticed the first tear in his eye, and felt "He is not so hard as he seems," and "passionate, heroic music" made his recreations, side by side with hunting in youth, long country drives in old age, conversation and his pipe. The Reform Earl Grey had a passion for dancing, and, as premier in the midst of a political crisis, cried out one night at 10 Downing street, "What would I not give to dance like Taglioni!"

Root Cause of Nearly Every War.

During the World war a well-known French publicist was invited to address a large audience of children from the elementary schools of an American city. Walking quickly onto the stage, he commenced speaking in his own tongue, and then smiling at the bewildered children, he said, in perfect English: "You do not understand me, do you? There, my dear children, you have the root cause of this and nearly every other war. Only through a lack of proper understanding of the point of view of other nations are wars possible."—Christian Science Monitor.

POLLY OF PAPEETE

By M. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(© 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

IF GEORGE MALCOLM and Mary Malcolm could have foreseen the sad culmination of their world tour (their sudden illness with a tropical disease, their deaths in a little one-story hotel in Papeete, Tahiti; the consequent stranding of their eleven-year-old daughter), why, of course, they would have abandoned their journey.

But their vision could not pierce the veil of the future, and events occurred exactly as enumerated above. So suddenly were they smitten that there was no time to make arrangements for little Polly. She simply became a legacy to kind-hearted Mother Kenyon, who ran the Beach Harbor house, along with the few effects left by her parents and what money there was about their persons.

So Polly started on, growing into a slim, reserved young person, and a great help to Mother Kenyon, who did well by the girl as far as lay in her power.

When she was sixteen two things occurred. Letters began to arrive regarding one George Malcolm and his wife—cautious, investigating letters apparently written by some one who didn't wish to be let in for any responsibility until he or she were sure of its justification. Of equal importance to Polly with the letters, a new British consul took up his residence on the hill behind the hotel.

His name was Dean Everett. He was very good-looking and thirty-two. He was unmarried and heart free when he came. He met Polly and almost immediately fell head over heels in love.

Months went by while Mother Kenyon received and answered letters without making much of them to Polly, and Dean watched Polly daily growing into that winsome womanhood when he would feel at liberty to ask her to marry him.

Then came the culminating letter. It seemed that the person behind all the inquiries was a distant cousin of George Malcolm, an elderly aunt, evidently a well-to-do woman who had never seen Polly or Polly's mother, but who had heard of their journey and its ending months afterward. It seems reminiscences had piled up at another port of call and authorities there had communicated with the bank on which the checks were drawn.

The bank in turn had sought for relatives or information of the unfortunate couple. A steamer carrying mail which might have straightened out matters had been lost in a Southern Pacific hurricane. The whole affair had been involved and tedious.

But at last to Polly, nearing her eighteenth birthday, came the information that considerable money—or so it seemed to her—was due her, and a summons to come home and receive the care and education which must have been sadly lacking at the ends of the earth.

Polly took the letter to Dean in troubled bewilderment. What should she do? Mother Kenyon thought she should go. What did he think? "You must go, dear, by all means," he advised in what he conceived to be an elder brotherly fashion.

And so it was arranged. Polly was to go back on the very steamer which had brought the letter.

An hour before the boat was due to go Polly slipped away for a few minutes by herself down on the silver beach, where a radiant moon rode the heavens and the deep boom of the surf smote on one's ears from beyond the reef. Would her new home be as wonderful as the one she was leaving?

She sat for some moments drinking in the beauty of the scene. Then as she turned to go she saw a lonely figure pacing the shore, head bent, some distance down the beach. She recognized Dean immediately, started toward him, then thought better of it and ran back toward the hotel.

The Marlon's whistles blew shrilly as Everett waited on the dock. Either Polly had not come or else she had gone aboard and forgotten him. Yet there stood Mother Kenyon, the nucleus of a little group. True, every one came down to see the boat leave, but she would hardly stand there so complacently had not Polly been duly put aboard.

Now they were pulling in the gang-plank. Now there was a steady widening gap between the boat and the dock. Good-by, little Polly. Good-by!

But what was this sudden whirlwind at his side, which thrust a warm hand confidently into his? He turned and looked into Polly's shining eyes.

"Dean, you old silly! Why didn't you tell me you—care! Instead of that it had to be Mother Kenyon. I asked her if she thought you did, and she said 'Yes,' and then—why, of course, I couldn't go!"

"And you'll stay at the end of the earth with me, dear?" asked Dean, not yet sure of his wonderful fortune.

"End of the earth, Dean?" cried Polly. "Why, it's home!"

Poor Pup!

"Miss," said the policeman, "Is that your dachshund peeping around the corner of Sixteenth street?"

"Yes, it is," she replied. "I have called him, but he won't come on."

"He can't," said the copper. "His tail's caught in a doorway on Fifteenth street!"

HOW REED ACQUIRED TITLE

Why Famous Speaker of House Was Given Name "Czar"—Conduct Called "Russian."

Julius Chambers, at one time managing editor of the New York World, tells in his book, "News Hunting on Three Continents," how Thomas B. Reed, one-time speaker of the house of representatives, acquired the title of "Czar."

When the house of the Fifty-first congress organized in December, 1890, with the narrow majority of 104 Republicans to 161 Democrats, Reed, of Maine, was elected speaker. He insisted upon a new code of house rules. The Democrats assisted in passing them, probably under the pretension that Reed would embarrass their opponents. And that was exactly what he did. One day the speaker insisted on counting a quorum by including all members present in the chamber, whether or not they answered to their names at roll-call. Several members denounced the arbitrary conduct as undemocratic, even Russian, in character. The next morning in the New York World appeared the words, "Czar Reed," an inch high across the front page.

The words became indelibly engraved upon American political history.

Through a Sieve Woven Finer Than Silk

Raw materials of which portland cement is made come out of the ground usually as solid rock.

They must first be crushed, ground and reground until at least 85 per cent of the resulting powder will shake through a sieve that will actually hold water.

This sieve is considerably finer than the finest silk fabric. It has 200 hair-like bronze wires to the inch. That means 40,000 holes to the square inch.

But the several crushings and grindings necessary to reduce solid rock to this extreme fineness are only the beginning of cement making.

The powdered materials must then be subjected to intense heat for several hours in huge rotary kilns. Here they are half melted and become a substance much harder than the original rock—clinker, it is called.

Then the clinker must be crushed and ground until at least 78 per cent of the resulting product will pass through the sieve woven finer than silk. This is portland cement.

More than 80 power and fuel consuming operations are necessary in cement making. The electric power alone used in producing a barrel of portland cement would, if purchased at usual household rates, cost $1.70.

Few manufactured products go through so involved or complicated a process as portland cement. And it sells for less per pound than any comparable manufactured product.

TWO LITTLE BOY BURGLARS CAUGHT

Frank Tomczewski, 9 Years Old, and John Nadolewski, 7 Years Old, Arrested by Sergeant Phinney Charged With Entering Downtown Stores.

Frank Tomczewski, 9 years old of No. 67 Ann street, and John Nadolewski, 7 years old of No. 21 East Pierpont street, will be arraigned in children's court before Judge Joseph M. Fowler today charged with burglary in entering the stores of Sam Baker store on the Strand.

According to the police the lads entered Present's store by opening the front door with a key on Sunday morning. They stole $14 in money and a number of small articles such as rings, pencils, etc. It is said that they also obtained money in Baker's store as well as several small articles of merchandise.

The Tomczewski boy, according to the police, is one of the boys who recently broke into the grocery store of George Plankner on the Strand and stole cake and other articles.

This is the first in some time that the police have been obliged to arrest burglars of such youthful age.

PACKARD AND FORD COLLIDE

Demarest, Driving Former, Claims Keator, Driving Ford Was Drunk, Near Riffon.

Edward Demarest reported to the sheriff Tuesday afternoon that his Packard touring car had been struck by a Ford touring car driven by Alonzo Keator on the Kingston-New Paltz road near the White House Inn near Riffon. Demarest in reporting the accident stated that his car, license number 630-592, was proceeding toward Kingston at the time of the accident. Keator accompanied by Benjamin Clinton was proceeding toward New Paltz. The Ford car bore license number 293-759.

Mr. Demarest claims that as he approached the Ford car which was on the wrong side of the road no attempt was made to turn and when near the Ford he turned his Packard car to the left in order to avoid hitting the Ford. The Ford then was turned to the opposite side of the road and the cars came into collision. Considerable damage was done to the Ford and the Packard sustained a broken radiator, bent front axle and broken lamps.

No one was injured and no arrest was made. Mr. Demarest reported that in his opinion the driver of the car had been drinking.

TWO BELGIAN BALLOONS WON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Brussels, Sept. 26.—Belgium sets the first two places in the international balloon race for the James Gordon Bennett cup. It was shown today by a computation of distances. The Belgica covered 1,600 kilometers and the Prince Leopold 950 kilometers.

A military funeral will be held here tomorrow for the five aeronauts, including two Americans who were killed.

The Spanish ambassador received a telegram from the burgomaster of Woldendorf, Holland, saying that two Spanish balloonists, Guillen and Sierra, had been arrested because their balloon in landing, damaged some roofs and chimney pots. The burgomaster informed the ambassador that the aeronauts would be held in jail until payment was guaranteed. The ambassador guaranteed the payment and the balloonists were released.

GRAND CHAPLAIN AT LODGE NO. 10

A Member Of That Masonic Organization 33 Years He Assists At Confering Of Degree And Receives Grand Chaplain's Apron.

Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., is honored this year by having three of its members listed among the Grand Lodge officers and plans were made Tuesday evening to have these Grand Lodge officers present at the conferring of the third degree upon a class of eight candidates. The Rev. Augustus A. Walker, grand chaplain of the grand lodge, who resides at Walton, N. Y., a member of Kingston Lodge for 33 years; District Deputy Grand Master Robert E. Leighton and Philip Elting who is a member of the Washington memorial monument committee are the three grand lodge officers from Kingston Lodge No. 10. Mr. Elting was unable to be present at the meeting.

Chaplain Walker came to participate in the conferring of the degree upon the class of candidates, and gave the charge to the candidates following the degree work. One of the delightful features of the evening was the presentation to Chaplain Walker of a grand chaplain's apron. District Deputy Grand Master Leighton making the presentation on behalf of Kingston Lodge and Chaplain Walker very feelingly responded.

Grand Master Judge A. S. Tompkins, a boyhood friend of Chaplain Walker, was unable to attend on account of previous engagements and a letter of regret was read.

The first session of the third degree was conferred upon the candidates at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock after the Grand Lodge officers had been received with honors the second session of the third degree was conferred in fine form. Following the conferring of the degree work a supper was served.

CLOWN SEEL OFF FOR WINTER.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray G. Huling left this city Sunday for their extended coast to coast Kiehl's vaudeville engagement with their famous clown seal. This noted animal has been all over the world and it is expected this engagement will exceed any trip they have ever taken.

COMPARE

The Maximum of Proved VS. Many Extravagant Claims
Intrinsic Value of Superiority

So many announcements of new model cars come out every year that it is impossible for the buyer to know which value is real and which is only a claim.

This year the issue has been confused by the introduction of mechanical changes, some of which have been rushed into production while still in the experimental stage—and then immediately given wide publicity.

Important considerations have been overlooked and great stress placed upon unimportant details.

But the man who intends to buy a motor car need not let this confusion or this glamour of publicity lead him to make a mistake or risk satisfaction in his purchase. The automobiles themselves are available for comparison.

See and be convinced. Riding is believing.

As an aid to intelligent buying we offer the following suggestions:

Place the 1924 model Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car at $995 alongside any car you may select as belonging in the same class. Every car looks well in the picture—most cars make a good impression in their own show windows. The Studebaker Light-Six is a winner along the best-looking competitor you can find. And it's larger, more substantial, roomier, more comfortable looking—and is more comfortable.

Compare the top. Look inside and out. The Studebaker top is sturdily built. Has four stout cross bows. Top material is same as is satisfactorily used in the Big-Six. Notice the fit, feel the quality. The rear curtain is one-piece—has no seams—with a large rectangular window board by an enameled moulding.

Compare the body. Studebaker has a roomy, substantial, carefully made body—all steel even to its framework, which permits a finish in baked enamel. A depressed belt line runs around the body and through the hood and radiator, adding to its distinctive appearance.

Compare the one-piece, rain-proof windshield, with built-in cowl lamps, with the ordinary two-piece windshield with rubber strip that leaks in every rain and always obstructs the driver's vision. Notice the large cowl ventilator that is quickly operated by merely moving the regulator backward or forward.

Compare the Studebaker door trimmings and fittings with the door fittings of other cars. Notice that the door pocket flaps have weights to hold them in position. Man-sized door handles and latches, positive-action door locks that catch with a snap and stay closed. Heavy hinges properly located and proportioned. Highest grade trimmings material instead of painted cardboard. Fastening nails concealed.

Compare the aluminum-bound linoleum that is neatly fitted and fastened to the floor boards of this 1924 Studebaker Light-Six with the rubber mats that cover the cheap, loosely-fitted floor boards in many other cars.

Compare the cheap robe rail (sometimes hemp rope covered with imitation leather) with the Studebaker nickel-plated rail. Compare the forty-cent footrest with the comfortable, carpet-covered footrest, supported by polished aluminum brackets in the Studebaker.

These comparisons are of features that can be seen. There are many more down under the surface that could be mentioned, such as the machining of all surfaces of the crankshaft and connecting rods of the Light-Six motor. This is largely responsible for the practical absence of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six. This is an exclusive Studebaker practice on cars at this price.

If competition is so far inferior in its visible parts, it is a certainty that the hidden parts which really determine the satisfaction of a car will be equally inferior.

The Studebaker chassis is as far superior to any other motor car chassis in its price field as Studebaker upholstery is to other upholstery.

Come in and see the Light-Six. Test its performance and comfort yourself. Again—Riding is believing.

WALTON SOLDIERS PREVENT MEETING

who announced they would meet to say "are a lawless mob, the majority of whom are members of the Klan." Reinforcements have arrived here in the last 24 hours. Two hundred additional soldiers detained in Oklahoma City last night and an additional battery arrived here this morning.

No confirmation could be obtained of a published statement that 25 picked marksmen, armed with automatic rifles, arrived here from Tulsa last night.

Tension was high at headquarters of the "lawless legislators" as they made final plans for the "march on the capitol."

Representative W. D. McDev, who issued the call for the meeting, reiterated that the legislators would attempt to assemble despite the new military activities.

Major J. C. Campbell, infantry, Oklahoma National Guard, issued the following order to the Oklahoma City police department:

"Both military and civil officers are directed to disperse all gatherings and to prohibit speeches on the street that might inflame the citizens."

Supplementary instructions bearing on the above order were issued to the civil police by Chief of Police Ray Frazier.

A double guard was thrown about the executive mansion this morning. Governor Walton planned to spend the day quietly with his family.

Colonel Zach Mulhall, picturesque "dead shot" and head of Governor Walton's personal body guard of some twenty men, said special precautions were taken last night to guard the life of the governor.

"I am seeing to it that nothing happens to the governor during this trouble," said Mulhall. "Last night I had him sleep on the east side of the house instead of the east. We can't be too careful right now."

"Today we have a high powered automobile standing at the governor's house. If anybody should try to assassinate the governor or throw a bomb at the house, he'd never get away."

Adjutant General Markham declined to explain what steps would be taken to prevent the legislators from assembling. He referred questions to his military order "number 138," in which he asserted that pursuant to a special legislative military order issued by Governor Walton that he (the adjutant general) forbids the meeting scheduled at the state capitol today, "or at any other time or place within the state during the present period of unrest."

Bands of volunteers are ready to support him in response to his request that citizens between 21 and 45 years of age "hold themselves in readiness" with such arms as they possess, Governor Walton said. He said they were volunteering by telephone, telegram and mail.

The governor received a telegram from Bascom Simpson, secretary to President Coolidge, in which it was stated that use of federal buildings for purposes other than business of the United States government is contrary to regulations and that the custody of the local federal building was so notified. The telegram was in response to one sent President Coolidge last night by Governor Walton who had heard a report that legislators contemplated holding their "lawless" gathering in the federal building.

At headquarters of the legislature that a regiment or two of women proceeded to the capitol in the manner as they have in the past, by automobiles or in street cars, the start to be made "shortly after 11 o'clock."

There were indications this morning that regiment or two of women would attempt to march to the capitol, too. The troops at the capitol building were making preparations to keep at a distance the army of curiosity seekers who are expected to be drawn to the capitol by the new newspapermen with special military passes will be permitted inside the "battle lines."

Shortly before ten o'clock orders were sent to the legislators to assemble immediately "in the legislative suite" at the Skirvin Hotel for a caucus.

The meeting was held behind closed doors and no one but members

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Two admitted. Final instructions to the members as to how they would conduct themselves at the capitol were being issued by the leaders. It was said.

A large number of the members were present at the meeting, apparently beating out early predictions made by Representative McDev that more than a quorum would go to the capitol.

It was announced that the members would start for the capitol by street cars and automobiles at 11 o'clock. The meeting was scheduled for 12 o'clock under the call sent out by McDev for the assembly.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Holy Cross Church will meet at the parish house Thursday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. This is an important meeting and a full attendance is desired.

Circle No. 3 of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Comforter will hold an afternoon social Wednesday, September 26, at the home of Mrs. H. Gerhardt, 157 East Chesapeake street. Refreshments will be served.

The first fall meeting of the home and foreign missionary societies of the St. James M. E. Church will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Duncan Lawrence, 51 Maiden Lane, on Friday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Devotionals will be given by Mrs. T. H. Edmonston. The annual election of officers will take place and the annual payment of dues taken.

Miss M. Helen Freer will sing Thursday morning at the memorial meeting of the W. C. T. U. which is being held at Highland, N. Y., this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery have returned to their home at Sidney after attending the wedding of Mrs. Montgomery's sister, Miss Helen Smith.

Mrs. Harry Holland of Winnetka, Ill., and her daughter, Mrs. Harold E. Robinson, of Buffalo are visiting Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Robinson of Abel street.

Miss Peggy Spitz, who has been spending a week's vacation as the guest of Miss Regina Mooney on Lucas avenue, has returned to her home in Poughkeepsie.

Ernest Rosa of 25 Clinton avenue and Mrs. Sarah Rosa of Lucas avenue, have been spending a few days with Mr. Rosa's mother, Mrs. H. Calvin of New Haven, Conn. They made the trip by automobile.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gilroy of New Market, Ontario, Canada, spent the week end with her aunt, Mr. W. Converse Kellogg, at 5 Joy's Lane. Mrs. Gilroy is a granddaughter of the late Alexander Muir, author of Canada's national hymn, "The Maple Leaf Forever."

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. David M. DeWitt, mother of Postmaster W. C. DeWitt, died at her home, 182 Pearl street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Regina, infant daughter of Anthony and Mary Pendergast, died Tuesday evening at the family residence in Port Ewen. Interment was made this afternoon in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

Herman W. Barton died this morning at his home 350 Foxhall avenue. Mr. Barton was a fruit dealer and formerly resided in Olive, N. Y. He is survived by his wife and two children, John W. Barton and Flora Mae Barton, both of this city and one sister, Mrs. Elmina Ferris of America, N. Y. Funeral from the late residence Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

John J. Callahan died this morning at his residence at Sawkill. Mr. Callahan was a life long resident of Sawkill and had been ill for some time. He was a member of St. Ann's Holy Name Society and was one of the best known citizens of this part of the county. Besides his wife he is survived by two sons, John and Edwin and one daughter, Mary Catherine, also two brothers, Bartholomew and Thomas and three sisters, Mrs. George Johnson, Mrs. Samuel Lynch and Mrs. James B. Lahey. Funeral Friday morning from the late residence at 9:30 o'clock and from St. Ann's Church, Sawkill, at 10 o'clock with a solemn Mass of requiem for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Ann's cemetery, Sawkill.

The final rites over the remains of the late Mrs. Linnie A. Fronefeld were held at the Port Ewen Reformed Church on Tuesday afternoon. A large circle of relatives and friends who filled the church gathered to pay their parting tribute of respect. The pastor, the Rev. Martin Luther conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. C. H. Polhemus, a former minister. Herman La Tour of Kingston sang two solos, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "No Night There," the former being a favorite of the deceased, as well as the hymns "Lead Kindly Light" and "Asleep in Jesus" which were sung by the congregation. The eulogy was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Polhemus who took for his theme "Motherhood" and spoke of mother love in its most beautiful and attractive sense as the realization of true womanhood. After the address, Kingston Chapter, No. 155, Order of Eastern Star, conducted their burial service which in its simplicity was very impressive. The floral tributes were beautiful and profuse. The interment was in the family plot in the Port Ewen cemetery.

Talking Shop.

An automobile dealer telephoned a friend to announce the arrival of his new baby. "We just received a new model at our house," he said. "Snap, little job. All pink and white. Make a fine little rumbler in a couple of years. Uses the Klaxon a bit too much, but that's to be expected. Mother and child both biting on all six." "Well, well," replied his friend, a newspaper man. "You didn't scoop me. We got out a little extra home edition ourselves a few days ago. It's the best way to furnish a house."

Power to Be Harnessed.

The demand for electrical energy is increasing by such leaps and bounds that every available power source is being tapped. Geysers and artesian wells have been called upon to do their share towards furnishing light and power. The only sources of energy as yet elusive to man's efforts to chain them for power-producing purposes are the sun's rays and the ocean's waves. Necessity being the mother of invention, man will eventually find a way to harness these valuable forces also.

Salt Lake critics are praising the work of Joe Jenkins. He had a bad year in 1922, with a lame arm and everything, but this year he has come back strong.

Another pitcher named Stoner is coming up to the big show. He bats from the Knoxville team of the Appalachian league and has been bought by the New York Nationals.

The New York Nationals have purchased two pitchers from minor league clubs. One is Ernest Raun, a youngster from the Wichita club of the Western league, and the other is Fred Newberry, from Atlanta.

FOOTBALL TO LEAVE ILLINOIS FIELD FOREVER

After the Butler game, Oct. 13, Illinois field will pass out of existence as far as football is concerned. All of the home games after that day will be played in the new Memorial stadium. A glimpse into the history of the field is timely.

In 1888 baseball was played in the northeast corner of the present gridiron. In 1891 the first field became a realization. The northern boundary of the field was 150 feet south of University avenue, the southern boundary near the big tree north of the present gridiron. The foundation of the field was the stones of the first building, these stones were covered by six inches of dirt. The growing need for a grandstand led the students to hold drive for funds, very much like the students did on the new stadium. The capacity of the stands when completed was 300.

Money for First Cinder Track.

W. B. McKinley donated money for Illinois' first cinder track. Permission was granted a committee, of which George Huff was a member, to use cinders from the water plant. These were the cinders on which later many track stars of the country were to participate. The northern boundary of the field was later extended to University avenue.

In 1905 the conditions became so crowded that the field was extended south to Springfield avenue. The first football bleachers were built but still the crowded conditions existed and the capacity was increased.

Capacity of Bleachers.

In 1914 the capacity of the bleachers was 4,000. Since that time the stands have been enlarged twice and in 1922, with the addition of temporary stands, 20,000 could be taken care of. And still at the big games like Iowa last year, thousands sought tickets unsuccessfully. When the football team moves to the stadium Nov. 3, it is expected to take care of all patrons.

As soon as the Butler game is over the moving of the west bleachers to the baseball diamond will be begun. This will allow the accommodation of nearly 8,000 people more.

MANAGER M'GRAW IS NOT AFRAID TO ACT

Hank Gowdy Deal One Example of His Managerial Methods.

Possibly you don't like John McGraw, of the New York Giants; possibly you do not approve of all of his methods to win pennants, but for one thing you must admire him.

McGraw is a man of nerve. When he is satisfied that he can improve his ball club he does not stand on convention. He is one of the very few managers in baseball who is willing to take back a player he has disposed of in previous years.

His trade with Boston for Hank Gowdy brings this fact forcibly to mind, for Gowdy had his first major league experience with New York and then was traded to Boston.

Helme Groh is another player that McGraw has had for a second time, while in other years Charles Herzog was at two different times on McGraw's pay roll.

Eastern sport writers have about come to the conclusion that McGraw's anxiety to have a heady catcher back of the plate induced him to trade for Gowdy.

In the world's series last fall it was an open secret that McGraw and not the catcher signaled the pitcher what to pitch each time. Gowdy may be slowing up somewhat, but of him one thing can be said. He knows National league batters from A to Z, and he knows what they can hit and what they cannot hit so well.

ORIENT RAILWAY TRAINS MISSING

By Telegram to The Freeman. Belgrade, Sept. 26.—Two express trains on the Orient Railway (the line connecting Continental Europe with Turkey), are unaccounted for, and are believed to have been seized by Bulgarian rebels. Trains upon this line carry many foreign passengers and it is probable that there were English and Americans upon one or both of the missing trains.

A report was received here that Premier Zankoff, of Bulgaria, had been assassinated, but it is doubted. The Sofia government is still at war against the rebels who have adopted guerrilla tactics making it difficult to restore order. The government is hampered by lack of men and munitions. Insurgents tried to capture Sarajewo, but were repulsed with 100 killed. Rebels captured Radomir, but regulars were ordered to storm the rebel works and it is probable that Radomir is again in the hands of the government by this time. Two thousand reinforcements have left Sofia. Many rebels have surrendered, giving up their arms.

PAPYRUS VALUED AT $270,000

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Sept. 26.—August Belmont, chairman of the Jockey Club, and one of the biggest figures in American thoroughbred racing, today took occasion to issue vehement denial of a report that he intended to purchase Papyrus, English derby winner, now on his way to this country to race America's best three year old. Mr. Belmont seemed much excited about the matter but whether his distress was occasioned by what he termed a misleading report or the price set upon the head of Papyrus was not divulged.

It is understood that Ben Irish, owner of the English colt, is asking a mere matter of 55,000 pounds for the horse. This, if true, disposes of all possible purchasers automatically. It is the highest price, by many thousands, ever asked for a thoroughbred race horse and makes Mr. Belmont's denial at once convincing and unnecessary.

"There is not a word of truth in that report," declared the noted sportsman, under whose auspices the international match race will be run October 20. "It is entirely fabrication. It has been noised about some time but so far as I know, there is no foundation for it."

Apparently dissatisfied with the effect of his own denial, Mr. Belmont then called upon C. J. Fitzgerald, his representative who went to England to arrange the details of the race, to substantiate, and if possible, amplify the statement. Mr. Fitzgerald did.

"You can quote me as saying that no offer has been made by any American for Papyrus," he declared. "I don't think there will be any offer made. Papyrus is to go back to England right after the race. The price that Ben Irish is asking for the horse is the largest in the history of racing. It is fifty-five thousand pounds."

The dual statements effectively dispose of all hopes that Papyrus will be kept here as an American institution, win or lose in the big race. This was supposed to be a part of the agreement whereby the race was arranged. It explained Ben Irish's eagerness to go through with a proposition that placed all the natural advantages on the American side but the explanation was founded on a false premise. The inference is now clear that Mr. Irish is a thorough going sportsman, actuated by motives of sportsmanship and none other.

GIANTS NEED ONE GAME TO WIN FLAG

The Giants, speeding home today after their final western trip, found themselves needing but one more victory to win the pennant, even if the Reds win all of their remaining four contests.

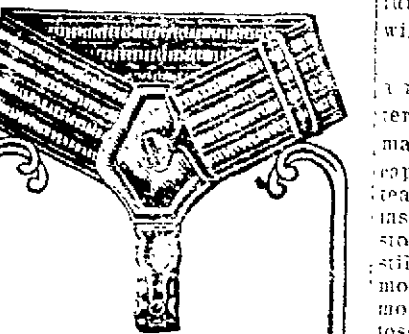

The Giants have five games to play, four with the Dodgers and one with the Braves. If they win one of these and the Reds win their four games the final standing of the teams would be:

New York	94	59	624
Cincinnati	91	69	610

The Giants will be idle until Friday when they meet the Robins at the Polo Grounds, while the Reds will not play until the end of the week when they clash with the Cardinals.

Buffalo Herds Increased.

The buffalo herds on the game preserves maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture have been increased this season by the birth of 118 calves. Of these, 92 are on the Montana Bison range, 16 at Wind Cave preserve, South Dakota, 8 at Niobrara reservation, Nebraska, and 2 at Sully, Utah game preserve, North Dakota.

P. O. TEAMS ARE READY FOR BATTLE

Thursday afternoon at the Kingston Fair Grounds a baseball game between the employees of the Kingston Post Office and the Poughkeepsie Post Office will be staged. There has been much discussion through baseball circles as to the outcome of this struggle and a large delegation of baseball enthusiasts is expected to turn out for the contest. The game will be called at 4:30.

Both teams will be composed of a number of stars of today and yesterday. In the line-up of the local mail handlers will be Jack Robins, captain of the Colonial baseball team and first string catcher. Robins, as is well known, is a good backstop, but his ability as a pitcher is still a mystery. It will be known tomorrow, when he will take the mound for Postmaster DeWitt's ball tossers.

Bill Newkirk was a very good pitcher some years hence and it is said that he has been practicing very hard, catching over since. Bob Becker will hold down the initial sack, and his stretching ability is supposed to be beyond general proportions. Jim Delaney, who some years ago was no mean ground trooper, is still fast and is expected to stir up a lot of dirt around second. Delaney in his heyday was a member of the fighting Wilbur aggregation. Walt Wheeler and Johnny Johnston will cover short stop and third base. Both these boys are former high school players and much is therefore expected. Out yonder in the garden will be the sturdy fielders of local U. S. employees. Just how close these players will play to the fence remains to be seen. Billy Schwab, Colonial player, will play in left. John Palfrey will be in center and Smith in right. From those who know they say this is a mean field. In the Poughkeepsie line-up there also will be some stars, including Joe Havens, Elmer Steele and others. A banquet will follow at Golden Rule Inn.

Control Your Own Thoughts. It is always your imagination that will win out. Look at your imagining faculty. See what you are imagining. You believe you can take cold. "Yes, if I sit in a draft." You make the law to yourself. Your subconscious mind takes care of it. It is what you imagine and it is the law that you make to yourself that works. Says Mary Chapin in Psychology. It works while you are asleep, and works when your conscious mind is not working.

A DIPHTHERIA CLINIC FRIDAY

The first of a series of free clinics to ward off diphtheria will be held at the city hall Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Health Officer Daniel Connelly. All children who attend the clinic must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. Last year the board of health held a number of these free clinics which proved most successful, and at a recent meeting of the board it was decided to hold another series of clinics this year.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE BIG LEAGUES

The Giants stepped blithely along to within a single game of the pennant by beating the Reds 3 to 2. Coming like a bolt from the blue, the Athletics won 2 games from the Indians, 6 to 5 and 5 to 1. Jess Haines won his twentieth victory of the season when the Cardinals beat the Dodgers 4 to 1. A 3-run rally in the ninth gave the Tigers a 5 to 4 verdict over the Yanks.

The Pirates mauled four Phillies pitchers for 22 hits, and won, 18 to 5.

Making it 3 in a row, the Browns beat the Red Sox 8 to 2.

Barnes shut the Cubs right out, 2 to 0, the Braves getting to Rip Wheeler, a rookie, in the fourth and ninth.

A season of 5-thumbed fielding by the White Sox helped the Senators to score a 4 to 2 victory.

PAPYRUS STANDS VOYAGE WELL: DUE FRIDAY

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Sept. 26.—Advises from the Aquitania which is bearing Papyrus into port for the international match race with America's leading 3 year old, indicate that the English Derby winner is continuing to survive the rigors of the ocean voyage without distress. The ship, according to reports, has run into storms, Basil Jarvis, the trainer, stating by radio that the seas have been unusually high.

Papyrus's quarters, however, are aft of the "D" deck, the best position of the liner to overcome the motion of the sea and the horse is standing the journey well, Jarvis added.

The Aquitania is due to dock here Friday afternoon.

TWO GIRLS HIT BY AUTOMOBILE

Margaret and Catherine Fassbender of Post Street in Kingston City Hospital With Injuries Sustained Tuesday Afternoon on Abel Street.

Margaret and Catherine Fassbender, aged 11 and 8 respectively, and daughters of Stephen Fassbender of No. 5 Post street, are in Kingston City Hospital with injuries sustained late Tuesday afternoon on Abel street when struck by a touring car owned and driven by Thomas Carroll of No. 206 Flatbush avenue. Margaret has a severe cut on her forehead and Catherine is badly bruised about the head. At the hospital this morning it was stated that both little girls were resting comfortably. It is not expected that their injuries will prove serious.

According to Carroll's story of the accident as related to the police he was driving his Buick touring car east on Abel street and when near Hone street, struck the two girls. He claimed that the girls started out from behind another car and that he was unable to stop quickly enough to avoid hitting them. Carroll and the girls' father, who is employed at the Forest plant of Abel street, hurried the girls to the hospital in Carroll's car.

HUDSON MAY BE IN BASKETBALL LEAGUE

It is thought that the big basketball games at the Hudson armory will start up about the middle of October, when the last Co. M team which made such a fine showing last winter will resume play. There is a possibility of the Hudson team entering a new league which is being formed. This combination of teams would include Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Catskill and Hudson.—Catskill Mail.

Lives in Drop of Water. So tiny that it can be seen only by aid of a magnifying glass, an animal heretofore unknown, has been discovered by an eastern scientist. By means of whip-lash strokes of building projections covering its body it can move rapidly about in a drop of water. The little creature feeds chiefly on germs and other animals living in the water. It measures about one-two-hundredths of an inch long and is less than one-fourth as wide.—Popular Mechanics.
